TOKIO TO GET 'MODEL' NOTE FROM U. S. ON IMMIGRATION

Reply Handed To Ambassador Hanihara, Report

WILL BE TACTFUL

Japan Studying Problem Of Excess Population

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 10.—The Diplomatic Correspondent of the Daily Telegraph understands that the American reply to the Japanese Note, which, it is believed, was handed to Mr. Hanihara, the Japanese Ambassador at Washington, yesterday, is a model of courtesy and tactfulness, and intended to assuage Japanese susceptibilities.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, June 3.—Finding a proper outlet for Japan's surplus and increasing population is one of the most serious problems that this country is faced with, according to the report of the Immigration Subcommittee of the new Imperial Economic Board, which has just submitted its recommendations to the major body for consideration.

Fully recognising the importance of the problem, the subcommittee has drawn up a comprehensive list of suggestions, the execution of which is believed to be necessary, if a successful emigration policy is to be inaugurated, from the point of view of the administration and of the emigrants themselves.

Looking at the problem from a domestic view-point, the subcommittee recommends a more extensive emigration to the northern districts known as Hokkaido, which at present has a population of 2,400,000, whereas space can be found there for over 4,000,000.

But it is clearly indicated that little success would attend any efforts to people these districts, unless special attention is paid to the needs of settlers there, particularly in the matter of communications and banking facilities.

The committee therefore recommends that communications between the mainland and Hokkaido should be speeded up and developed, that the railway system should be extended, either by Government enterprise or by subsidy to private concerns, and that railway freights should be reduced to the lowest practicable level.

At the same time the establishment of a special colonial bank is recommended.

For the settlers themselves, the authorities are urged to consider means of more favorable terms of settlement, and to encourage the setting up of industrial guilds.

The lack of knowledge as to conditions and possibilities in Hokkaido among the Japanese people generally is pointed out, and those appointed to supervise emigration are recommended to make the districts better known by means of judicious propaganda.

The other aspect of emigration, namely to foreign countries, has also been taken into consideration by the Committee, which, however, in its report so far published, has not indicated any directions in which Japanese people might migrate, except to say that emigration should be encouraged to those countries where Japanese are acceptable, and after a proper diplomatic arrangement has been made.

Noteworthy among the recommendations made for the encouragement of emigration are the permanent exemption of the overseas settler from his military service and the advice that after a certain period of residence abroad the settler should seek to

Peking Dust

A Daily Chronicle Of The Capital's Gossip And News

(By Our Staff Correspondent)

Peking, June 7.—With the passing of the Dragon Boat Festival—one of the important settling days—yesterday the Chinese Government has safely passed another financial crisis, just as it has passed dozens of others in recent years despite the wails and lamentations that go up without fail two or three weeks before each settling day. Each time the Minister of Finance, whoever it happens to be, laments that the Chinese treasury is as bare as Mother Hubbard's justly famous cupboard and that the Republic must certainly become a bankrupt because there isn't a red cent to be had. And just as surely the settling day comes and goes and the Government, in some manner, always scraped up enough loose change to pay at least a part of the debts that are urgent and everything goes along just as it did before.

Peking has yelled "wolf" so many times in the question of settling day finances that some day the guardians of the purse strings of China are going to take it at its word and refuse a penny in the hope that the Government will actually go bankrupt and fade out of existence under the shame and humiliation of losing so much 'face.' Either that, or knowing that the money is always raised in some manner all the money-holders, independent of each other, will adopt a policy of letting the other fellow kick through with the necessary shekels with the result that Peking, some day, may seek in vain money because of their cry-baby tactics in raising funds in the past.

The settling day yesterday was passed by raising $4,000,000, chiefly from the Salt surplus, although Peking a week ago wailed that unless they had $5,000,000—and not a penny less—to hand out to deserving creditors the Government's credit would be about as good as the chances of the well known and justly famous snowball in the nether regions, which it is anyway. Out of the $4,000,000 a goodly portion, of course, will go the way of all good cash in China and be generously squeezed. From the remainder the Peking police and gendarmes will receive seventy percent of a month's salary, Parliament and the educational institutions supported by the Government will receive fifty-five percent of a month's salary, and the administrative branches from twenty to forty percent.

The police are getting the biggest cut because of their oft-repeated threats to strike and leave the city at the mercy of robbers and cut-throats. Ordinarily Peking is an extremely peaceful city with very little crime. Within the past few weeks, someone sent a bomb to Dr. Wellington Koo, and armed robbers shot and killed the daughter of a Member of Parliament and one of his servants when they resisted robbery. Those two cases have thrown sufficient scare into the various politicians for them to see to it that the police get as much as possible. Every one of them can picture himself getting a bomb, or his house being the rendevouz of bands of cut-throats and murderers unless the police are on the job. Which makes it pretty good for the police who for months have been struggling along on rice money and nothing more.

The parliamentarians and educational institutions are getting their share of the melon because of their often-used and also justly famous vocal abilities. There is an old custom in North China in connection with the birth of an infant in which the tongue of a duck is rubbed on the lips of the new born babe with the expection that it will make him, or her, a good talker. In nearly all cases where the charm has worked it has turned out that the boy has eventually become either a student or a member of Parliament because they are unquestionably China's champion spreaders of the w.k. hot air.

Every time anything is done Parliament, which to the Westerner versed in the procedure of a paliamentary form of government is one of the nation's best jokes, and the students, who are ever-ready to spout forth oratory on

Evidence Is Concluded In Webb Action Brought Against The China Press

Final Witnesses Are Called; Argument Of Counsel Will Be Heard By Judge Purdy Next Monday

After a hearing lasting practically three days, the conclusion of the evidence was reached yesterday morning before Judge Milton Purdy, in the U. S. Court for China, in which Herbert Webb, former editor of this paper, sued The China Press, Inc., to recover the sum of $82,000 alleged to be damages suffered as the result of the breach of plaintiff's agreement with defendant.

Mr. H. D. Rodger and Mr. C. S. Franklin appeared for the plaintiff and Mr. Stirling Fessenden and Mr. W. S. Fleming for the defendant.

Mr. C. J. Laval, formerly an employee of The China Press and now editor of The Evening News, stated that he did not consider that Mr. Webb at any time was incapacitated by drink from carrying out efficiently the duties of editor of The China Press. It was also impossible, in witness's view, for an editor to fix his hours so that he came on duty at 9 a.m. and went off at 5 p.m. He was, as a rule, wanted much later in the day when the paper was being sent to the press. Witness had noticed no marked change in Mr. Webb's drinking during the period he had known him.

Cross-examined as to the canteen, witness was of the opinion that there were advantages in having one in a newspaper office, and in the case of The China Press remarked that the drinking was only incidental to the business of the paper, and while it might not tend to increase the efficiency of a staff, it did not, in this instance, in his opinion, tend to do the opposite.

Mr. C. E. P. Sutcliffe, night overseer of the printing department of The China Press, stated that he had never seen Mr. Webb the worse for liquor, nor had the paper been delayed as a result of his failure to supply editorials on time.

Mr. Harold Norman, recalled for the defence, gave evidence of a conversation which he stated he had with Mr. Graham Barrow in which the latter had remarked that he wondered how Mr. Webb had managed to keep going so long, and that it had to come to an end sooner or later. Witness asked him if he would give evidence on behalf of The China Press and he remarked he certainly would, because The China Press had been so good to him during the last two or three months over certain matters. In the course of that conversation, witness said, Mr. Graham Barrow remarked that he had seen "Poor old Herbert whooping it up for years past."

This concluded the evidence in the case, argument being reserved until Monday next.

ASSAULT CHARGE BROUGHT AGAINST AMERICAN TARS

Hanbury Institute Fracas Alleged Result Of Sailor's Death

Yesterday morning three blue jackets appeared before Commissioner N. E. Lurton, in the U. S. Consular Court, charged with assaulting three Chinese, Wong Wai-sung, Ooh Li-nyung and Chen Li-ling, the three defendants being E. H. Farris, T. Baxter and I. F. Diamond for whom Lt. Scott Umsted appeared.

Evidence was given to the effect that, on the evening of the 6th, the three defendants were in the Astor Bar, when they were met by a man named Pearlman, who knew one of them. After two drinks, the men went to the Winter Garden, where Pearlman, failing to obtain liquor on credit, returned with the three defendants to the Astor Bar, and according to Pearlman, as he was alighting from his riesha, one of the three defendants hit him at the back of the head. He ran to the Hanbury Institute, for refuge. This witness was unable to say who struck him.

Mr. Inwood, manager of the Hanbury Institute, stated that he was retiring for the night when he heard a commotion in the Institute, the boy coming up and calling him. He went downstairs and on his way met the night watchman who was coming up to see him with a wound on the back of the head. He went on down and found the three defendants in the building. Witness told them to leave, but they replied: "No, we will not leave until we break up this joint." They then attacked a coolie who was standing near. Mr. Morgan, who was with witness at the time, also requested the defendants to go and one of the men turned round and said, "No. I will not go until we see Murphy." Mr. Morgan asked "What do you want Mr. Murphy for?" and he replied, "He is the man who killed the American seaman." And further they stated that they wanted to beat Mr. Murphy up.

Evidence was given by the Chinese who it is alleged, were assaulted, and the defendants were bound over to be dealt with by the naval authorities.

Missioners' Fate In Beleagured City Is Uncertain

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, June 7.—The fate of the score or so of British and American missionaries in the beleagured city of Kweilin appears still to be uncertain. As late as May 25, according to a consular report received today from Changsha, Kweilin was still closely invested and no news had been received from Bishop Holden or any of the other British missionaries in the city. Chinese reports state that two American missionaries have been killed and that the whole population is in the last stages of famine, the daily rice ration for each person having been limited to four ounces. The suburbs and neighborhood of the city are said to have been laid waste by General Shen Hung-ying's troops and the outlook is gloomy.

On May 27, the Consular report states, two British missionaries, the Rev. J. R. Wilson and the Rev. A. J. W. Mackay, arriving in Yingchow, set out for Kweilin with the object of trying to get some information regarding the foreigners in the city. Meanwhile large bodies of Hunanese troops have been drafted to the Kwangsi border.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, June 10.—A Consular report from Changsha of yesterday's date says that during factional fighting at Shenchowfu, Western Hunan, two American missionaries, Messrs. George R. Snyder and Carl H. Beck of the Reformed Church of the United States Mission, were each wounded by a bullet in the left arm.

Toronto Doctor Has Discovered Cancer Germ, It Is Claimed

(Reuter's American Service)

Philadelphia, June 9.—The Philadelphia North American publishes an article claiming that Dr. R. G. Glover of Toronto has discovered the cause of cancer and also the treatment of the disease which, though still in the experimental stage, is producing remarkable results.

Dr. Glover has established that cancer is due to a micro-organism. He has isolated the germ and proved by the Koch cycle laboratory test its part as a causative factor.

It is stated that Dr. Glover has made tests in the past two years in over 2,000 confirmed cases of cancer in every stage and that in the majority of cases favorable results have been secured, some patients being discharged free of all symptoms of the disease.

COLLEGE MAN MAY BE G.O.P. NOMINEE AS RUNNING MATE

Burton, Of University Of Michigan, Is Dark Horse

LOWDEN LIKED

Former Governor May Be Named; Coolidge Certainty

(BY UNITED PRESS)

Cleveland, June 9—Marion Burton, president of the University of Michigan and formerly a newsboy in Minneapolis, is looked upon as the most promising "dark horse" in the vice-presidential contest that is being waged here on the eve of the opening of the Republican national convention. Mr. Burton is a close friend of President Coolidge and his name is being well received in pre-convention conferences.

Another name that is persistently mentioned is that of former governor Frank O. Lowden, of Illinois, despite his withdrawal from the race; consequently the contest at present seems to center between these two. Senator Watson, of Indiana, who has the so-called Ku Klux support, is also a candidate for the vice-presidency nomination.

Coolidge will be nominated for the presidency without doubt.

The Philippine delegation, which is here with the hope of obtaining a platform pledge for immediate independence, is being well received, although it is not thought their plea will be granted.

New York, June 9.—Considerable zest has been given to the political situation through a statement by Governor Smith of New York, the avowed Democratic candidate for the Presidency, on his stand on the "wet" or "dry" issue, which he made in response

CHILDREN TO TAKE PART IN PROGRAM FOR JULY FOURTH

Asked To Meet With Mrs. Gardner Crane Next Saturday

In line with the usual big American Fourth of July celebration, plans are being formulated for a series of tableaux depicting past American history and present events through the medium of Mother Goose characters.

Mrs. Gardner Crane, of the Dramatic Section of the American Women's Club, who is noted for the originality and abundance of her ideas, is playing a prominent part in arranging these tableaux. She is desirous of getting all the American children in Shanghai between the ages of six and fourteen who would like to appear in these tableaux to meet at her house, 10 Lucerne Road, on Saturday morning at half past nine.

Among the current topics selected for translation into Mother Goose for the tableaux is the Tea Pot Dome Investigation. In its Mother Goose raiment the embarrassing "Dome" situation will be revealed as "Hi Diddle Diddle, the cat and the fiddle, the cow jumped over the moon, etc." The Republican party is the cat, the United States Senate which is very much up in the air over the thing, fittingly enough, will be represented as the cow who jumped over the moon. The Democratic party is doubled up with laughter at the fun while the Tea Pot Dome interests are, of course, the dish which ran away with the spoon.

Little Miss Moffett will be there as Spain; the curds and whey which were her portion in the nursery rhyme will appear as Cuba's sugar, while the United States is the great, big, black spider frightening Spain away.

The cooperation of mothers with children between the ages of six and fourteen is invited, since many of the tableaux will need a large number of children.

Men Who Figure In News Of The Day

Below: MARQUIS DE CHAMBRUN & "BILLY" SUNDAY

An honorary American citizen has been made a member of the French Chamber of Deputies. He is Marquis de Chambrun, French war hero, elected from the Department of Lozere. The Marquis is a direct descendant of Marquis de LaFayette, all of whose descendants have been made "honorary American citizens" by special act of Congress. U. S. Senator Oscar W. Underwood, of Alabama, candidate for the Democratic nomination for the Presidency, will seek to force through the Democratic National Convention in New York a plank opposing secret political organizations, aimed at the Ku Klux Klan. "Billy" Sunday, famous evangelist, is suffering from ptomaine poisoning in Memphis, Tenn. Lieutenant Lowell H. Smith, senior of the U. S. Air Service officers left with the 'round-the-world fliers, will command the flight leader Major Frederick L. Martin, who, in a new "ship," can remain aloft somewhere in the Balkans.

Released Missioners Tell Of Kwangsi Pirates' Raid

A graphic story of the capture of the four British and American missionaries taken by pirates in Kwangsi, of the release of two of them and of the demands made for the ransom of the others, is given in a report to THE CHINA PRESS from Dr. George W. Leavell, of the Stout Memorial Hospital, Wuchow. The report is in the nature of a statement taken from the Rev. H. G. Miller and the Rev. R. A. Jaffray, two of the captured missioners, after they had made their arduous way back to Wuchow. Their statement follows:

"We were taken at four o'clock Sunday afternoon, May 25. We had an escort of eighty soldiers from Chiu Ping who walked, while the 'Roanoke' went up the river, keeping even with the 'Roanoke' all the way. Ten li below Taai Kwong the troops who had been marching on the west side of the river crossed to the opposite bank, to the east side, and on reaching the town of Taai Kwong the robbers opened fire upon us. Our launch anchored, and many of the troops gathered behind the launch and shot across the river at the enemy. Probably only twenty shots were fired from our escort of eighty men. The robbers at Taai Kwong were about thirty in number, as far as we could tell, and they poured into us a volley of over a hundred shots. Immediately the firing opened about two-thirds of our escort ran for their lives, without offering any resistance. Our escort did not return to offer any protection.

BIND CAPTAIN

"The robbers called to us to send a deputation over to them. Our Chinese captain and pilot volunteer to go. They held the captain on their side of the river binding him, and sent the pilot back with two of their men apparently unarmed. They asked us for $4,800 toll, we replied that we did not have that amount, but that we would give them all we had, several hundred dollars—about $400.00.

"The robbers' deputation returned to the other side of the river, and two others came back for further parley. They demanded that a foreigner cross the river to discuss the matter with their chief. This we refused to consider, but said that we would be glad for the chief to come over and discuss matters with us.

"Their next move was for twelve or fifteen of them to cross to our side of the river, armed. They took possession of our boat, forced the pilot and engineer at the point of revolvers, and took the boat to their side, the west side, of the river.

LAUNCH IS LOOTED

"On anchoring the robbers swarmed down upon our launch like a pack of wolves. We were ordered ashore at the point of revolver, and obeyed promptly. Making our way to a paddy field, we were allowed to sit down, while the whole gang ransacked our boat, and we could hear their destructive work.

"A little later, and it was now almost dusk, they began to bring our pieces of baggage to the paddy field where we were sitting, and opened it, asking us questions about various foreign things which they found in our baggage.

"The looting done, we were marched forward with an armed man before and behind each of us. It was then night fall. We walked with lanterns for perhaps three-quarters of an hour, and

CHINESE RAISE FUND TO DREDGE SOOCHOW CREEK

Commercial Body Reports Efforts To Relieve Congestion

Chinese residents of the eight districts affected have raised funds necessary for the beginning of dredging of the Soochow Creek, according to letters sent by the Chinese General Chamber of Commerce to the Shanghai General Chamber of Commerce and the work of surveying the creek was to be started June 1. The text of the letters follows:

Shanghai, 22nd February, 1924.
The Shanghai General Chamber of Commerce, Shanghai.

Dear Sirs,

I beg to acknowledge the receipt of your letter regarding the congestion on Soochow Creek and requesting this Chamber to take any action possible in the matter. In reply I beg to state that the creek is communicating with 8 districts, as follows: Shanghai, Paoshan, Chingpu, Taitsang, Chiading, Quinsan, Wukiang etc. The people of these districts are suffering seriously from the congestion on the creek, and they are unanimously willing to contribute towards the expense of dredging of the creek, in order to avoid the congestion.

This Chamber is now in consultation with the people of these 8 districts regarding subscriptions towards the expenses for dredging and as soon as the contributions fixed we will request the Chinese authorities to commence the work forthwith.

General Chamber of Commerce
(Shanghai)
Pang Chiu Pa,
Vice-Chairman.

Shanghai, May 24, 1924.

The Secretaries,
Shanghai General Chamber of Commerce.
Shanghai.

Dear Sirs:

With reference to inquiries about the Soochow Creek contained in your letter of the 14th instant, we have the pleasure to inform you that so far as the contributions are concerned, the amount required for the conservancy of the lower part of the Soochow Creek has been successfully raised through the cooperative efforts of the public organisations of the eight districts concerned as well as the commercial bodies of Shanghai. The date of June 1 has been fixed for carrying out the first part of the undertaking by surveying the Creek.

Yours faithfully,
(Signed) K. S. Zee,
General Secretary.

U. S. Closes Year With Good Surplus

(Reuter's American Service)

Washington, June 9.—The Director of the Budget Bureau has informed President Coolidge that the Government will close its books for the fiscal year ending June 30 with a surplus of between $350,000,000 and $400,000,000.

HERRIOT FEELS SURE POLITICAL SEA WILL SUBSIDE

Millerand, In Message To Parliament, Will Review Regime

(French Wireless through Reuter)

Paris, June 9.—The Marsal Cabinet comprises:

MM. Ratier, Justice.

Lefebvre du Prey, Foreign Affairs.

de Selves, Interior.

Maginot, War.

Lieut.-Col. Fabry, Colonies.

MM. le Trocquer, Public Works.

Landry, Public Instruction.

Flandrin, Commerce.

Marin, Liberated Regions.

M. Marsal will only communicate the message from the President. "We shall add," he said, "a brief statement that our aim is to allow the head of the State, in conformity with the Constitution, to make his voice heard and to see that legality is respected. We invite the representatives of the nation to pronounce on this message."

(Later).—The Senate will await the vote of the Chamber on the President's message in order to avoid possible opposition between the two Assemblies, which the Right was counting on. M. Marsal declares that everything is calm. M. Herriot says that he has full confidence in a solution being attainable.

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, June 10.—According to a semi-official forecast of M. Millerand's message to Parliament, he will briefly review the events since his assumption of the Presidency. He will recall that he has invariably pursued a policy of social progress and agreement at home and abroad, and that all Cabinets to which he has entrusted the power have been coalition ones in which members of the left participated. He will declare that his attitude has always been in conformity with his constitutional prerogative. M. Millerand will point out that the new majority has made it impossible for the head of the State to exercise his mandate, and that such interference is inadmissible. He will assert that subordination of the powers of the head of State to electoral fluctuations would result in creating a precedent, fraught with incalculable consequences. In conclusion, the President will state that Parliament alone can decide the question of the Presidency.

Should the Government adopt these recommendations, it would mark a great change in the emigration policy Japan has hitherto followed.

Other recommendations put forward by the Committee include a sufficient grant to each emigrant so that he may properly establish himself, special training for the would-be emigrant, and the establishment of emigrants' homes with ample protection for those about to embark on a new life abroad.

Tokio, June 4.—Three thousand immigrants approximately are to be sent to Brazil this year, according to an announcement by the Social Affairs Bureau of the Home Department.

Each intending settler will be subsidised with a grant of two hundred yen to cover travelling expenses.

At the same time every effort by means of a publicity campaign will be made to encourage migration to Hokkaido and Formosa.

For the purposes of this campaign the sum of Y.150,000 is reported to have been set aside.

any subject regardless of whether they know what they are talking about or not, let forth with a series of bombastic explosions. They have gotten into the habit of kicking about anything and everything to such an extent that the Peking Government, despite the fact that they would like to take them all out and have them shot at sunrise, puts up with them. More than that, in an attempt to placate them to a certain extent, they see to it regularly that the M. P.'s. get at least a small portion of their salaries regularly (or as regularly as anyone gets paid in China) and that the schools get some of the money coming to them.

And the officials and clerks of the administrate office are getting their wee share because they are really needed—at least a portion of them—to carry on the semblance of government. On settling days they are paid as little as possible and still keep some of them on the job. The majority have received 15 and 20 percent of their salaries for so long that they are now beginning to think that the salaries promised them at the beginning are 'movie star salaries,' 15 or 20 percent hard cash and the remainder 'face' and glory.

The only really interesting and vital point in the settling day proceedings was the fact that despite the Cabinet's assertion that the only way they could raise sufficient funds to pass Dragon Boat Festival was by settling the German bonds question under which China will collect approximately £1,000,000. The settling day has been passed without that money but the Cabinet is still going ahead with the negotiations in order to get the money. There are flocks of ways in which it can be used if they ever get it!

Cleveland, Ohio, June 9.—The eve of the Republican National Convention is in marked contrast to similar gatherings. The city is filled with politicians representing various States, but no banners are flying from the headquarters of rival candidates nor are pictures of them pasted in windows and other vantage points. The reason is that President Coolidge appears to be the only candidate and he is likely to be nominated, virtually by acclamation.

The only thrills likely to occur will be during the efforts to choose a Vice-President and to frame the planks of the party's platform, particularly in regard to the World Court, foreign debt and tariff, on which there is considerable divergency of opinion among the party leaders.

A number of names of possible Vice-Presidential candidates are mentioned, including those of General Charles G. Dawes, Mr. Herbert Hoover, Mr. Theodore Burton and the Ambassador to Mexico, Mr. Charles Beecher Warren.

ARREST OFFICIALS FOR REFUSING TO SUPPRESS OPIUM

Antis Find Large Areas Under Cultivation In Anhui

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, June 7.—The International Anti-Opium Association has given much publicity recently to the cultivation of poppy in Northern Anhui province, and urgent instructions have frequently been issued by the Government to the Tuli, ordering total suppression. Petitions have been sent to the Waichiaopu by the Association calling attention to the extensive cultivation of poppy in Pochow and Nansuchow. A recent report received by the Association states that General Ma Lien-cha, Tuli of Anhui, enraged at seeing poppy growing throughout the whole district of Pochow, summoned Magistrate Liu Yu-tien to an interview after which Liu was removed from office and replaced by Magistrate Fu Yang. The latter was given instructions to clear his district of poppy. With the assistance of members of the Fuyang Branch of the International Anti-Opium Association, he has now succeeded in clearing his district. As it was alleged that the opium cultivation was encouraged by the Opium Suppression Commissioners Wang Kuang-chun, Li Yin-nung, Fan Kou-pin and Chang Yung-tu, these men have been arrested and will be brought to the Provincial Yamen for trial.

The report adds that the Anking Taoyin, Hsien Hsuehlin, on a tour of inspection found that 30,000 mu of land was being used for poppy cultivation under encouragement given by Yien-Chien-cheng and Hsien Tzu-nan, Commissioners appointed by the Hsien Yamen. Each mu of land was being taxed at from $6.20 to $8. All these culprits have been arrested. The Taoyin has now instructed the Magistrate to clear these areas within two weeks. These are the main results of inspections carried out by the orders of Tuli Ma during a month.

SWEARS AT COURT AND RESULT IS MONTH MORE JAIL

A vituperative remark in Russian in reference to the Bench after he had been sentenced, spelled just 30 days more imprisonment for D. Shepkoff at the Mixed Court yesterday.

Shepkoff was charged with creating a disturbance in the offices of the Russian Volunteer Fleet, 14 Kiukiang Road, on Monday. He had previously been in the Mixed Court on an identical charge and had been warned. His excuse yesterday was that he wished to be sent back to Russia. He was sentenced to two months' imprisonment by Assessor Jacobs and Magistrate Kwan. As he left the dock he burst into a volley of Russian. The Court interpreter, with a shocked expression on his face, turned to the bench and reported that the man had made use of extremely objectionable language with reference to the Court. So obscene were the remarks, he said, that he could not repeat them to the Assessor and Magistrate. The accused was thereupon called back to the dock and was informed that his sentence would be of three months' duration instead of two. He will be expelled at the expiry of his term.

Eleanor Haber

There was quite a nice and appreciative audience last night at the Astor House Grill Room when Miss Haber gave the first of two recitals. This clever little lady has just returned from New York and she has brought with her a lot of first class monologues. There is just one thing better than the monologues and that is the very excellent way in which Miss Haber puts them over. She had her audience with her the whole time. We were all in a continual state of giggle, punctuated at times with roars of laughter.

There is no doubt that Miss Haber is a unique artiste. She is a perfect mimic and is able to portray characters ranging from the sublime to the ridiculous. I thought that she was especially good in her "Game of Bridge" and in her "Mah Jongg" story. She also tickled her audience immensely with her description of a "Culture Class."

For over an hour this charming woman kept her audience thoroughly interested. When it is remembered that she started away without the help of a band or the appeal of footlights and yet "got over" it is sufficient guarantee of her real ability.

Miss Haber is to appear again in yet another recital at the Astor House next Friday night, and those playgoers who like something good and really humorous cannot do better than visit her when she gives this last recital.

Pilfered Kiss Spells $5 Fine For Ardent Youth

A stolen kiss brought Lieu Koo-sung, 22-year-old hairdresser, into the Mixed Court yesterday, when the presiding dignitaries assessed the value of the pilfered salutation at $5.

The complainant Woo Shu-zung, stated that she was walking along Jessfield Road with a girl companion, returning from her job at one of Shanghai's factories, when the accused made his osculatory attack. Lieu, in somewhat sheepish fashion, denied the soft impeachment and intimated that somebody else must have inflicted the caress, he being attracted by the consequent crowd and being gathered in, without warrant, by the constabulary.

DETAILS GIVEN OF ATTACK MADE ON HONGKONG MAN

Further details of the vicious attack made on a foreigner, Mr. H. W. Page, by a Chinese burglar in Hongkong recently are available in the report given by the Hongkong Telegraph of June 4, which has just come to hand. The account follows:

A most sensational affair, in which a European resident was murderously attacked by a Chinese housebreaker, took place in Nathan Road, Kowloon, in the early hours of this morning, as a consequence of which, Mr. H. W. Page, of the Dairy Farm, Ice and Cold Storage Company, is now lying very seriously injured, whilst his Chinese assailant was killed by a fall in trying to make his escape.

Soon after two o'clock this morning, Mr. Page, who lives in the top flat above the Dairy Farm Company's Kowloon Branch, Nathan Road, was awakened by the barking of his terrier dog. So soon as he attempted to rise, he was immediately attacked by a man whom he had previously noticed to be standing near his bed. It appears that the intruder, a Chinese burglar, had effected his entrance to the flat by climbing along the roof from the adjoining flat and lowering himself on to the verandah by means of a rope secured to the coping. The man was armed with a knife and made a savage onslaught on Mr. Page, who closed with him.

20-MINUTE STRUGGLE

A protracted struggle ensued. When one knife was broken, the intruder produced another from his belt, Mr. Page, who is a middle-aged man of big physique, struggled hard to get the better of his assailant, who clawed and bit wherever possible. The top of one of Mr. Page's fingers was completely bitten off, whilst he received knife wounds in the chest and lower portion of the abdomen. Suffering from loss of blood, Mr. Page shouted for help, but the struggle must have lasted for fully twenty minutes before the attention of others was drawn to anything untoward. Meanwhile, the Chinese had not got off scot free, Mr. Page very severely punishing him. The terrier dog also did his best to help, for when the body of the Chinese was later examined it was found that his legs had been bitten, one of the toes being almost off. It was a terrible and deathly struggle.

A Portuguese neighbor was the first to hear Mr. Page's calls for help, and he immediately secured two policemen whom he found close by on night duty, and with them went up to the flat and banged on the door. It was this that frightened the Chinese to attempt an escape. Running on to the verandah, he endeavored to climb back to the roof by the rope he had previously used. No doubt weakened by his struggles, he failed to make the climb and fell down into the street, where he was found dead, having been instantly killed by landing on his head.

TERRIBLE SCENE

Mr. Page was too exhausted to answer the knockings on the door, which had to be forced open. A scene of terrible disorder greeted those who had effected the entrance, Mr. Page being found lying on the floor almost unconscious. Medical aid was at once summoned, Dr. Ozorio being the first in attendance. Dr. Strahan, Mr. Page's medical adviser, was later present, and it was found necessary to put in quite a number of stitches in the abdominal wound. Apart from loss of blood and extensive bruising, Mr. Page's condition was not extremely serious, and it was deemed better not to remove him to hospital. His many friends will sincerely sympathise with him in his experience and wish him a speedy recovery to health.

Regarding the Chinese, whose body was later removed to the Mortuary, nothing is known at present. He is, apparently, a stranger to Hongkong, but the police are still making investigations.

The affair created quite a sensation in Kowloon when it became known this morning, for Mr. Page is an old resident and highly respected by a wide circle.

were brought to a country farm house and ordered into a loft where we found other captives, some who had been in their hands for ten days or two weeks. We were kept in the loft for an hour, and then were ordered down and out again.

MARCHED UP MOUNTAIN

"We marched from that time, say, about ten o'clock till about two in the morning, climbing a high mountain, crossing a stream, or streams, of water thirteen times, and finally reached a point not far from the top of the mountain, which we learned later is near a village called Kwai Fa Chung.

"At this place the robbers held a lengthy consultation, dividing the money which they had found on the launch. Gathering from what we could pick up of their conversation, they had looted between two and three hundred dollars in silver. Meanwhile, we were allowed to dry our clothes and shoes at an open fire-place, and were given rice gruel to eat.

"Having settled up affairs pretty much between themselves, they returned to us, and finally decided that two of us should be released to return to Wuchow at once on the 'Roanoke', and the other two would be held for ransom. We were left to decide ourselves as to who should go and who should stay. Being two Britishers and two Americans, and in view of the fact that two of our number only spoke the language fluently, the other two having arrived in China more recently, we agreed to pair off Mr. Carne and Mr. Ray, Mr. Jaffray and Dr. Miller. The former two agreed to remain, and the latter to return to Wuchow to arrange for the ransom. No definite price was settled, at least not in writing, at this time.

TO SECRET DEN

"Mr. Carne and Mr. Ray were to be taken immediately to another secret den, and Dr. Miller and Mr. Jaffray were to be escorted down to the river again to leave on the 'Roanoke' at daybreak.

"Suddenly, however, all plans were changed, and the whole gang practically left with Mr. Carne and Mr. Ray, leaving Dr. Miller and Mr. Jaffray to await their return when they said they would take us back to the river. It was still pitch dark when Mr. Carne and Mr. Ray left, and Mr. Jaffray and Dr. Miller remained through the night, and throughout Monday, May 26, until five o'clock in the evening, during which time they were sometimes left for hours without an armed guard, the robbers coming and going in groups of fifteen or twenty in number.

"At about five o'clock that evening Mr. Jaffray and Dr. Miller determined that it was time for them to suggest a move. They made bold to approach the man who seemed to be the head of the robbers present, and told him the promise that the chief had made about taking them to the 'Roanoke' and releasing them to go to Wuchow. He readily agreed and, in fact, it seemed to be all settled that we were to move at that time.

RETURN BEGUN

"We set out and marched down the mountain again over the same road. Turning down the Fu River, on the west side, south toward Chiu Ping, we continued this course till probably about midnight, at which time we crossed the Fu River to the opposite bank, that is, the east bank. We landed near Wai Chan Miu, and proceeded directly up a steep mountain side, over an extremely rugged path. The lower part of the mountain was rocky, and we could hear the fall of water all the way; in fact, we were greatly refreshed by the mountain stream on our all-night tramp. The upper part of the mountain was composed of earth and grass, the path being steep, narrow and extremely slippery. We judge the mountain to be probably 3,000 feet high. We thought we would never reach the summit, but our guards did not hasten us, and allowed us to rest frequently, and did not threaten in any way. They gave us milk which they had looted from our boat.

OTHER CAPTIVES

"On reaching the summit we travelled on a plain for half a mile, after which we descended a steep pathway down the other side which seemed to have a steep precipice, and which led us after fifteen minutes descent, perhaps a quarter of the way down the opposite side into a mountain fastness where we found ourselves in an improvised rough mat-shed, full of robbers and their captives, both men and women.

"It was now 5 o'clock Tuesday morning, May 27, we having marched exactly twelve hours.

"After three hours' rest we arose to take in our surroundings, found our new robber chief, who proved to be the second in command of the whole gang, and engaged in friendly conversation with him and his men. They supplied us with milk which they had stolen from us, and some other tinned provisions, gave us good rice and gruel, allowed our boy to cut the lean part of their pork and prepare it for us. They gave us bed boards and a Chinese mosquito net. We never could have believed that men and women could sink to such depravity as our eyes beheld.

HUGE DEMAND MADE

"On Wednesday (May 28) the chief had decided to separate us, that is, to dispatch Mr. Jaffray to Wuchow for the ransom money, and hold Dr. Miller as well as the other two men for ransom. At midnight the chief came to us with a written document in Chinese, demanding that two hundred thousand dollars silver be paid as the price of our ransom, together with a hundred mausers with three hundred rounds of cartridge and two belts for each mauser. There was nothing to do but fill in the figures as they demanded and sign the contract. This was done using Mr. Jaffray's Chinese name, 'Chak Fu Man' in Romanised letters, much to the satisfaction and delight of the chief.

"It rained all night, and in the morning the chief said that it was impossible to descend the mountain in safety. We therefore waited, and by Wednesday noon we were greeted with the news that the fore-guard bringing Messrs. Carne and Ray had arrived, and that these gentlemen would join us ere long. They arrived about four o'clok in the afternoon accompanied by the robber chief who had first captured us. This man proved to be third in command of the robber gang. The first chief we did not see but we understand he is located at his den near Wong Ngau, a village above Taai Kwong. Both Mr. Carne and Mr. Ray were in fairly good shape. The latter had had a slight illness up the mountain.

TIME LIMIT SET

"The robber chief held a council and decided that Messrs. Jaffray and Miller be dispatched to Wuchow to raise the ransom money. We were limited to three weeks to return with the ransom price.

"At 10 o'clock Thursday morning (May 29) Messrs. Jaffray and Miller under guard of ten armed robbers started down the terrible and steep precipice of the mountain. Never had we walked on such slippery and dangerous paths, and it was nothing short of a miracle that we reached the foot of the mountain in safety. In the pouring rain at the foot of the mountain we crossed a stream which took us almost to our necks. After this we trudged along through paddy fields toward the bank of the Fu River for about an hour, coming out at the Wai Chan Temple where a ferry boat awaited us. Our armed escort remained on the bank while we pushed out to the center of the river being rowed by two commandeered ferrymen. Our guard retreated hastily to the mountains and hid themselves, watching us descend the river. We floated down the swift current for about an hour and a half, and landed on the west side of the river, walking for another hour and a half or more into the city of Chiu Ping.

"We at once boarded the 'Roanoke,' which was anchored there, bought Chinese clothes, while our own tattered garments were dried in the engine room. The launch we found to have been terribly mutilated by the robbers, partitions chopped out, and everything in fearful disorder. Not only did they clear us out completely of all our baggage, different gangs of robbers having looted the boat three times, but the crew had a difficult task to keep them from breaking the engines and disabling the boat entirely. The robbers thought that the engines were iron cases containing fire-arms. They found difficulty, however, in plying the bolts. An attempt was made to set fire to the launch by pouring oil over the deck, but the crew succeeded in extinguishing the flames before much damage was done.

REPORT TO OFFICIALS

"Several officials visited us, civil and military, to whom we told our story. The Hsien official, however, sent a representative saying that he had important business and had no leisure to come. On receiving our reply, however, he came hastily to our boat. He seemed to be chagrined to realise that a small company of between twenty and thirty robbers could have put to flight eighty of his soldiers.

"We left Chiu Ping aboard the 'Roanoke' on Friday morning (May 30) at daybreak, the Hsien official providing us with an escort of ten soldiers to Laap Chuk, the limit of his district. Some of the soldiers, however, left us before this point, and all of them left us at Laap Chuk. They told us that there was a point below Laap Chuk where a band of robbers had attacked passing boats. Strange enough the new guard that was to have boarded our launch to escort us down from Laap Chuk failed to appear, so that we passed the danger spot without escort. We arrived at Wuchow at 4:30 p.m. Friday, May 30."

New Director For Students In Japan

(The rank to be given for this post is "Tsung Tsai" which carries control independent of the Minister to Tokio, the Director being responsible only to the Cabinet.

Mr. En Hua, Vice-President of the Tibetan and Mongolian Affairs Department, was relieved of his post at his own request, and Mr. Chi Cheng-wu was appointed to succeed him.

The meeting also resolved to give substantive rank to General Wang Tan, Taili Vice-Minister of War.

MERLIN TRIP TO JAPAN MADE TO IMPROVE TRADE

No Political Significance In Visit; Is Coming Here

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, June 7.—Following a fairly strenuous round of social functions and sightseeing in Peking, M. Merlin, Governor-General of Indo-China, and Madame Merlin will leave on Monday for Shanghai. After spending two or three days there, they will return to Hanoi by way of Hongkong, Canton and Macao.

In the course of a chat with members of the Governor General's staff, a Reuter representative was able to glean some interesting information regarding M. Merlin's recent trip to Japan. His visit, it appears, was undertaken at the suggestion of M. Claudel, French Ambassador to Tokio, with the approval of the Japanese Government, and its main purpose was to investigate the possibilities of developing trade relations between Japan and Indo-China. Political affairs, it was pointed out, are quite outside the province of the Governor-General of Indo-China and there was therefore no political significance about M. Merlin's visit.

Accompanying M. Merlin in Japan were the Presidents of the three principal Chambers of Commerce in Indo-China—those of Saigon, Haiphong and Hanoi—and they were afforded opportunities of getting into touch with commercial men of similar standing in Japan. The Governor-General himself, it was emphasised, had no other official mission than to present to the Prince Regent and Crown Princess congratulations upon the occasion of their wedding and also to bring to Japan a new message of France's and Indo-China's sympathy with the country for her losses in the recent earthquake. In addition, M. Merlin wanted to study labor conditions in Japan for himself and to form a personal idea of future commercial prospects and possibilities. But, the Reuter representative was assured, by a member of the Governor-General's suite, "M. Merlin had no mission whatsoever to prepare a treaty with Japan, which would be the job of the Ambassador, and no text was drafted. Perhaps, however, if it is found possible, Indo-China will modify the tariff rates in regard to certain articles. But in any case that would have to be submitted to the French Government for approval because Indo-China possesses no fiscal autonomy. As to the result of the Governor-General's visit to Japan—the result is that he knows more clearly the possibilities of commercial relations between that country and Indo-China in the future."

YOUNG FOREIGN BURGLAR GETS SIX-MONTH TERM

Convicted Of Numerous Office Breakings In Central District

Alexander Panfiloff, the 16-year-old Russian burglar and office-breaker who has looted a number of foreign offices in the Central district during recent months, was sentenced to six months' imprisonment by Assessor Jacobs and Magistrate Kwan in the Mixed Court yesterday, and at the expiry of his term will be re-expelled from the Settlement.

Panfiloff's conviction as an office-breaker is due to the work of Detective Sergeant Forkin of Central station, who has been working on the case since the Russian lad was arrested while trying to rob the Chinese Y.M.C.A., Szechuen Road, on May 28. The detective immediately got busy on the fingerprint angle and discovered that identical markings were left during the course of the following burglaries: at 22 Kiangse Road on April 12, when two blank checks negotiable for a considerable sum, were stolen from Mr. Shinjyo; at 9A Hankow Road, on April 23, when money and clothing to the amount of $122 was stolen from Mr. Shiwazaka; at 8B Kiukiang Road on May 8, when a trunk containing money and clothing was stolen from Mr. Reimer; and at 9 Ezra Road on May 23, when a trunk and other property to the value of $500 was stolen from Mr. Strom.

The accused admitted practically all of the offenses and a large part of the stolen property has been recovered.

Panfiloff, who had been expelled from Shanghai, was in prison in Yokohama at the time of the earthquake and was later deported from Japan. He took his sentence philosophically.

GALLOPERS TAKE ANOTHER GAME FROM TUNG WEN

Collegians Fall Before Locals By 11 To 3 Score

The Shanghai baseball team took on the Tung Wen college nine for another practice game yesterday and defeated them, 11 to 3. A week ago the Japanese collegians played the locals to a standstill, collecting a total of ten blows. Yesterday they were not so good, either at bat or in the field, with the result that the exhibition was very ragged.

Aside from the first and second innings, when they collected a triple and a brace of doubles off Tinkham's pitching, cashing these wallops for a pair of counters, the Japanese were helpless.

Harry Kingman started the fireworks for the home side in the second inning, when with the bases full he clouted a circuit wollop.

The first outside team to play Shanghai this season will be here for games on Saturday and Sunday. This team is composed of Japanese players and hails from Formosa.

Yesterday's box score:

'Benny' Ferrier Plays Fine Golf In Australia

Members of the Shanghai Golf club and other friends here will be delighted to know that Mr. J. B. Ferrier, the club champion, competed recently in the Autumn Medal competition at Manly, and that he finished second, with a 78, the best score being a 75.

This achievement led the Sydney "Sun" to predict that if Mr. Ferrier entered the Amateur state championship he would have to be reckoned with as a possible winner.

Mr. Ferrier announced when he went away that he would return to Shanghai in September, and as this would be a bit early it is not believed that he will be able to compete in the major competitions at Manly.

Waiting List At S'hai Golf Club No Longer Exists

The committee of the Shanghai Golf club has announced that the waiting list, which has been in force for a great many years, no longer exists. With the purchase of the new property the club finds it will have room for additional members, in consequence of which those whose names are put up for ballot find their applications acted upon immediately. Further, they have the privileges of the club pending their election as full members.

The committee, while not particularly seeking new members, wishes it to be known that getting into the club at this time does not involve the long wait formerly necessary, in some instances as much as two years.

New members, of course, must be proposed in the regular way and voted upon before they can become members.

Elcano Baseball Team Victors Over Japanese, 4 To 2

The baseball team of the U. S. S. Elcano played the third game of the season yesterday, sticking up against the Ashitawa Club, a Japanese nine. "Slim" Griffith was on the slab for the navy boys and as a result the Japanese had considerable difficulty in seeing the pill as it shot past them, the Navy lad getting no less than twelve strike outs. Griff also pushed over the first run for his team by hammering out a triple in the first inning after Lisk had got on via a single over second. Griffith scored on a sacrifice fly from Shultz's bat. The final score was 4 to 2.

The Elcano boys played well, although they showed the need of more workouts. The Navy team feels confident of cleaning up this season, as they have some good new men. Griffith, the pitching ace of the Yangtze Patrol fleet is in fine form.

On Friday, June 15, the Elcano team will play the all star Japanese team from Formosa, the game being scheduled to start at 4.30 p.m. The following Tuesday they will take on the Shanghai team.

He Seems To Be Much Opposed To The Idea

I would have to thank you very much if you will be good enough to have these few lines of this letter to publish on your paper for the reputation both of our China and our sports men.

The recent national athletic meeting was held at Wuchang in China is the aim in seeing the progressing of good records in the hope towards for Far Eastern Sports to be held at Philippine next year.

The East China sent many athletes, besides foot ball team and other various teams attended the national meeting at Wuchang of last May for glory of self province of which I appreciate them very much, although the students wasted their time of studying but for right.

On hearing that there are a few men who will raise a foot ball team represents for East China to New Zealand in the near future for intending to obtain a little sum of shameful money to lose the reputation both of our China and our sportsmen I therefore greatly protest it, as at present the foreign country seems to our Chinese foot ball players as actors.

The South China foot ball team was called by Australia last year was an example that a quarrel had been already happened among the players, but it was merely for a limited of shameful money that there where be already no avoidance the laugh beyond foreigners.

To my great regret that the team member mostly are students who refer to waste their valueable time in learning during their school life for a period as long as about three or four months and a few business men who will leave their duty to insert it.

I sincerely hope my voluntarily and frankly proposal will meet public opinion that there will be no Chinese foot ball teams sent to foreign country for their using of our Chinese players as a party of circus or as actors.

To stop the laugh of foreigners and to keep a good name for China I sincerely warn the College students will not insert it and cancell the proposed team.

Dear Editor, If my proposal is right in respect of our China I must thank you again if you will kindly to have this simple note shown on your paper.

Yours sincerely,
K. Y. Chang

Uruguay Victors In Soccer Final At Olympic Games

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, June 9.—In the final of the Olympic Association football competition, Uruguay beat Switzerland by 3 goals to nil.

In the replay for third place, Sweden beat Holland by 3 goals to 1.

Uruguay were a magnificent all-round side, their fast and clever forward line combining like clock-work. They had far the best of the game and constantly menaced the Swiss goal. Their thrilling, whirlwind runs evoked cheers from the spectators. Uruguay scored six minutes from the start. At half-time the score was still 1 goal to 0, but the South Americans put on their second goal twenty minutes after the re-start and the final goal fifteen minutes later. Desperate Swiss efforts to reduce the lead failed.

JAPANESE LOOK TO NEW CABINET FOR BIG RESULTS

Newspapers Hope Policy Of Compromise And Unity Will Prevail

(Eastern News Agency)

Tokio, June 10.—The formation by Viscount Kato of a succeeding Cabinet is what the public expected. In this connection press circles take the view that since the political power has been shifted by such fair means new progress may be expected in the Government. The papers say that the three parties concerned should maintain their concert by compromise and mutual concession and thus endeavor to solve all pending problems.

The "Asahi" urges that the new Cabinet under the premiership of Viscount Kato with a strong united force of the three parties should do everything within its power to put into effect the universal suffrage, the administrative readjustment, the reform of the House of Peers, and the purification of national affairs.

The "Jiji" expresses the desire that the three parties should enhance their prestige by displaying a spirit of compromise and mutual concession as well as by promptly completing their coalition Cabinet amicably, with a view to the fundation Cabinet amicably, with a view to the fundamental reform of financial and administrative affairs and to the drastic reduction of armaments.

All the rest of the newspapers here make comments of general similarity, while business circles as a whole hope for financial retrenchment under the new cabinet.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, June 10.—Welcoming the selection of Viscount Kato as the next Prime Minister, this morning's newspapers practically unanimously exhort him to lay aside party preferences and establish a really strong three-party Ministry in order to effect proper handling of foreign and domestic problems. They at the same time warn the parties against their ancient feuds and dissensions.

The party leaders are at present holding conferences to explore the possibility of forming a coalition. The difficulty is said to be the question of allocation of portfolios amongst the parties.

Baron Shidenara, the former Ambassador to the United States, is most prominently mentioned for the Foreign Office, and Admiral Takarabe for the Ministry of the Navy, while it is understood that General Ugaki will remain Minister of War.

KIDNAPPED LAD TESTIFIES IN MURDER CASE

Eye-witness testimony of a fourteen-year-old Chinese apprentice was taken in the Mixed Court yesterday in the case wherein a woman and a man are charged with the murder of Yang Zau-su, pawnbroker found strangled to death in his shop at 675 Shanhaikwan Road on May 14.

Chief Detective Inspector Cruickshank stated that the male accused had been arrested in Hangchow, with the assistance of the Chinese authorities. The police had thought that there were more men concerned, but on the confession of the accused and according to a written description of the crime which was found on the man's person at the time he was arrested, he and the woman were the only ones concerned. Mr. Allman appeared for the widow of the deceased and asked that the seals on the shop be removed and that the apprentice be turned over to the Anhwei Guild, which had promised to look after him.

A remand was asked, but the Bench stated that it would take the evidence of the apprentice, who was in court. The lad, Wong Kwan-yang, said that the proprietor of the pawnshop was his uncle. The two accused had come into the place at about 8 p.m. on May 14, and the male accused said that he wanted to look over the "Faung Su," of the shop, to see if it was a suitable spot for the conducting of the business. The master knew the accused, he said, but had not told him to come. When he came in he had a dagger, which he placed on the floor. The witness picked it up and hid it. Later the accused looked for it and started a quarrel. He told the accused that he had put the weapon away and the master asked that the accused leave, which the latter refused to do. There was a quarrel and witness, who was then upstairs, heard the fighting and came down. He heard his master call for the police and his master then called on him to summon the police, but the male accused caught him by the throat and the woman then pulled his jacket up over his head, so that he could not see or call out. While in this position he heard his master thrown to the floor and the male accused call for a rope. The female accused went to execute the request and he was able then to see the man put the rope around his master's neck.

The robber then threatened to kill witness unless he told where the jewelry was kept. Later he took witness away with him and kept him until the time of arrest.

The wife of the deceased also testified, stating that she has seen the male accused once before, that he was from the same province as herself and husband, but that she did not know him.

The Court ordered that the case be set down for a special hearing and that the boy be turned over to the Anhwei Guild, they to sign a bond to produce him in court when necessary. The seals on the shop were ordered removed and the premises, as well as the property found in possession of the female accused to be turned over to the wife of the murdered pawnbroker.

Anglo-Italian Dispute Settled

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 10.—The long-standing diplomatic question between Britain and Italy with regard to the cession of territory in Africa, which has caused a little friction, has been virtually settled after a fortnight's negotiation between experts at a conference in London. The matter in dispute concerned the cession of Jubaland, which is at present a part of Kenya Colony, for incorporation in Italian Somaliland. The question was bound up in the conditions laid down by Italy, when she joined in the war by the side of the Allies in 1915, the stipulation having then been made that, if Britain and France as a result of the war acquired territory in Africa, Italy should receive compensation, particularly in North-Eastern Africa. An agreement with regard to the line of territory to be ceded was reached in 1920, but Britain made the arrangement dependent on a settlement of the future of the Dodecanese Islands in the Mediterranean, while the Italians made a counter-claim, the British have now abandoned their claim. The tract ceded is 45,000 square miles in extent, and is largely desert. The principal port is Kismayu.

A Week In The White House With President Coolidge

By FRENCH STROTHER
(For World's Work)

The following is the second part of an article written after a brief but intense study of the President under exceptionally favorable circumstances. My week included personal conversations with the President, observation at close range of his habits of work during the day, an evening as only guest at the White House, a round-trip on the President's train from Washington to New York for the Lincoln Day banquet at the Waldorf-Astoria, where he made his first full-length political speech since he became Chief Executive, and conversation with some of his intimate friends, all of his secretaries, and some of the press correspondents who have questioned him on public affairs twice every week since he has held his present office. The first part of the article appeared yesterday.

During the seven days consumed in this study, the writer consciously avoided asking any question about the President of any person not in a position to speak from first-hand contact with him. The writer further insisted that the persons questioned should, in their replies, stick to facts that were of their own personal knowledge, or, where they gave impressions, that these should be their own personal impressions. The data for the character of President Coolidge is, therefore, as authentic as can be obtained; and, the writer believes, sufficiently varied in source and matter to give a secure foundation for the deductions which he draws from them. For these deductions the author, and he alone, is responsible.

The Day's Work Of The Chief Executive

The day's work of the President begins at nine o'clock when he appears at his desk in the executive offices at the west end of the White Hoeuse. The oval room is large and quiet, and is decorated in soothing tones of pale and dark green. The light comes from a great curving bay window, its southern exposure giving out on the lawn of the White House grounds, and looking toward the Washington Monument, which towers above the trees of the Mall. President Coolidge sits at a mahogany desk with his back to the window and facing a cheery fireplace. In the middle of the wall to his left hand is the door from the secretary's office, through which his callers come. A corresponding door to his right leads to the Cabinet room. Two other doors are at the two far "corners" of the room. In through the one at the left, and out of the one at the right, passes the daily noon-hour line of callers who have come to shake the President's hand and who move quickly by, the whole reception taking only ten or fifteen minutes.

Push buttons on his desk provide the means to summon the Secretary to the President, or his personal secretary, or others of his staff.

The President's office is as quiet as a drawing room, but it is surrounded by a life as tense and pulsating as that which surrounds the office of any great business executive.

Every new President produces a distinctive change in the atmosphere that surrounds this wing of the White House. Most of the staff is permanent. Mr. Rudolph Forster has been the Executive Clerk ever since President McKinley's first Administration; "Pat" McKenna has been doorkeeper for many years; the policemen at the first entrance are men of long tenure, as are many others of the staff. But every President brings his own secretary and private secretary (the two have very different tasks), and, most important of all, he brings himself. His own personality instantly pervades the place.

Under President Harding, the atmosphere suggested a political convention—it was fragrant of its heavy cigar smoke and distinguished by an air of easy familiarity which pervaded the very mixed gathering of political friends and camp followers who swarmed in the secretary's office and the corridors. Under President Wilson, broad brimmed black hats were more in evidence the Southern drawl and the Southwestern mirth were oftener heard.

Coolidge Took Oath Before Father

Col. John C. Coolidge.

Vice-President Calvin Coolidge was sworn in an America's thirthieth President at 2:47 o'clock on the morning of Friday, August 3. The important, yet simple ceremony was performed on the extensive Coolidge farm near Plymouth, Vt., by Colonel John C. Coolidge, the new Chief Magistrate's father, who is a notary public.

Irish politicians and polished men of letters were more frequent visitors; and while the atmosphere was no less democratic, it was perhaps tinged with a shade more of dignity than the three years that followed. Under Roosevelt, the White House was the cosmopolitan center of the world. Bankers, poets, college presidents, cowboys, politicians, men of much learning and men of none, foregathered there with equal welcome, in an air charged with electric vitality and excitement.

How does the Coolidge regime compare with these?

The answer is brief: "Businesslike." The executive offices of the White House today are more like the executive offices of the head of a great business than they have ever been in modern times. The President regards himself as a servant of the people, employed for one sole purpose: namely, to transact their public business. He transacts it like a business man. As all of a President's contacts with other people are arranged through his secretary, what his secretary is like is always significant of a President's character.

C. Bascom Slemp is a highly efficient example of the type chosen by great business corporations to act as "assistant to the president." In him, President Coolidge has chosen one who is both a business man and a politician. Mr. Slemp inherited large and valuable lands and coal holdings, which he has managed since youth with conspicuous success. He has long been the president of a large corporation, which he owns. Throughout this same period he has also been a Republican member of Congress, serving seven successive terms in the House of Representatives from the Virginian District in which he was born and in which he succeeded his father as representative to Congress on his father's death. Mr. Slemp is a graduate of Virginia Military Institute, and was for a time adjunct Professor of Mathematics there. He is a logical composite of the characteristics suggested by the foregoing facts. An alert, athletic figure, with the erect carriage born of military training: perfectly groomed; soft spoken but decisive; politic but pointed in speech; suave but businesslike, he transacts business with discrimination and dispatch. His conduct of the office is a model of efficient management.

The callers who resort to a President's anteroom are varied enough to bewilder any but a business man who is also a politician and a man of the world. Mr. Slemp has them all classified in his mind, each according to the nature of his business: well wishers, office seekers, hand-shakers, autograph hunters, grievance bearers, Cabinet members, Senators and members of Congress, newspaper men, miscellaneous. To each he allots the exact measure of his time or the President's to which they are entitled. He has a quite remarkable gift for satisfying people who come with a grievance. His own congressional experience enables him to deal with most of the office seekers without disturbing the President; and enormously facilitates the President's dealings with the legislative branch of the Government generally.

Requests for autographs are accumulated during the day, and are disposed of in a few minutes late in the afternoon. "Well wishers" who wish only to get an opportunity to shake the President's hand may have only ten seconds with him, but they go away with their wish to see him gratified. No one who has a rational excuse for seeing the President is denied access to him, only it is arranged and expedited so that plenty of time is left for those callers for whom more time should be saved, such as Senators, important members of Congress, political leaders from all over the country, and any others whom it is really important the President should see.

The President is equally fortunate in his personal secretary, Edward T. Clark. He has been with Mr. Coolidge for several

JAPANESE LOOK TO NEW CABINET FOR BIG RESULTS

Newspapers Hope Policy Of Compromise And Unity Will Prevail

(Eastern News Agency)

Tokio, June 10.—The formation by Viscount Kato of a succeeding Cabinet is what the public expected. In this connection press circles take the view that since the political power has been shifted by such fair means new progress may be expected in the Government. The papers say that the three parties concerned should maintain their concert by compromise and mutual concession and thus endeavor to solve all pending problems.

The "Asahi" urges that the new Cabinet under the premiership of Viscount Kato with a strong united force of the three parties should do everything within its power to put into effect the universal suffrage, the administrative readjustment, the reform of the House of Peers, and the purification of national affairs.

The "Jiji" expresses the desire that the three parties should enhance their prestige by displaying a spirit of compromise and mutual concession as well as by promptly completing their coalition Cabinet amicably, with a view to the fundation Cabinet amicably, with a view to the fundamental reform of financial and administrative affairs and to the drastic reduction of armaments.

All the rest of the newspapers here make comments of general similarity, while business circles as a whole hope for financial retrenchment under the new cabinet.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, June 10.—Welcoming the selection of Viscount Kato as the next Prime Minister, this morning's newspapers practically unanimously exhort him to lay aside party preferences and establish a really strong three-party Ministry in order to effect proper handling of foreign and domestic problems. They at the same time warn the parties against their ancient feuds and dissensions.

The party leaders are at present holding conferences to explore the possibility of forming a coalition. The difficulty is said to be the question of allocation of portfolios amongst the parties.

Baron Shidenara, the former Ambassador to the United States, is most prominently mentioned for the Foreign Office, and Admiral Takarabe for the Ministry of the Navy, while it is understood that General Ugaki will remain Minister of War.

KIDNAPPED LAD TESTIFIES IN MURDER CASE

Eye-witness testimony of a fourteen-year-old Chinese apprentice was taken in the Mixed Court yesterday in the case wherein a woman and a man are charged with the murder of Yang Zau-su, pawnbroker found strangled to death in his shop at 675 Shanhaikwan Road on May 14.

Chief Detective Inspector Cruickshank stated that the male accused had been arrested in Hangchow, with the assistance of the Chinese authorities. The police had thought that there were more men concerned, but on the confession of the accused and according to a written description of the crime which was found on the man's person at the time he was arrested, he and the woman were the only ones concerned. Mr. Allman appeared for the widow of the deceased and asked that the seals on the shop be removed and that the apprentice be turned over to the Anhwei Guild, which had promised to look after him.

A remand was asked, but the Bench stated that it would take the evidence of the apprentice, who was in court. The lad, Wong Kwan-yang, said that the proprietor of the pawnshop was his uncle. The two accused had come into the place at about 8 p.m. on May 14, and the male accused said that he wanted to look over the "Faung Su," of the shop, to see if it was a suitable spot for the conducting of the business. The master knew the accused, he said, but had not told him to come. When he came in he had a dagger, which he placed on the floor. The witness picked it up and hid it. Later the accused looked for it and started a quarrel. He told the accused that he had put the weapon away and the master asked that the accused leave, which the latter refused to do. There was a quarrel and witness, who was then upstairs, heard the fighting and came down. He heard his master call for the police and his master then called on him to summon the police, but the male accused caught him by the throat and the woman then pulled his jacket up over his head, so that he could not see or call out. While in this position he heard his master thrown to the floor and the male accused call for a rope. The female accused went to execute the request and her was able then to see the man put the rope around his master's neck.

The robber then threatened to kill witness unless he told where the jewelry was kept. Later he took witness away with him and kept him until the time of arrest.

The wife of the deceased also testified, stating that she has seen the male accused once before, that he was from the same province as herself and husband, but that she did not know him.

The Court ordered that the case be set down for a special hearing and that the boy be turned over to the Anhwei Guild, they to sign a bond to produce him in court when necessary. The seals on the shop were ordered removed and the premises, as well as the property found in possession of the female accused to be turned over to the wife of the murdered pawnbroker.

Anglo-Italian Dispute Settled

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 10.—The long-standing diplomatic question between Britain and Italy with regard to the cession of territory in Africa, which has caused a little friction, has been virtually settled after a fortnight's negotiation between experts at a conference in London. The matter in dispute concerned the cession of Jubaland, which is at present a part of Kenya Colony, for incorporation in Italian Somaliland. The question was bound up in the conditions laid down by Italy, when she joined in the war by the side of the Allies in 1915, the stipulation having then been made that, if Britain and France as a result of the war acquired territory in Africa, Italy should receive compensation, particularly in North-Eastern Africa. An agreement with regard to the line of territory to be ceded was reached in 1920, but Britain made the arrangement dependent on a settlement of the future of the Dodecanese Islands in the Mediterranean, while the Italians made a counter-claim, the British have now abandoned their claim. The tract ceded is 45,000 square miles in extent, and is largely desert. The principal port is Kismayu.

A Week In The White House With President Coolidge

By FRENCH STROTHER
(For World's Work)

The following is the second part of an article written after a brief but intense study of the President under exceptionally favorable circumstances. My week included personal conversations with the President, observation at close range of his habits of work during the day, an evening as only guest at the White House, a round-trip on the President's train from Washington to New York for the Lincoln Day banquet at the Waldorf-Astoria, where he made his first full-length political speech since he became Chief Executive, and conversation with some of his intimate friends, all of his secretaries, and some of the press correspondents who have questioned him on public affairs twice every week since he has held his present office. A Week In The White House With President Coolidge years. A slow-spoken, canny New Englander himself, he has a gift for sociability, rare tact, and good judgment, and sound political instinct. His origin and temperament give him a sympathetic understanding of the President's psychology, that makes him a most helpful assistant in trying times like these. The attachment between the two is mutual, and is a real source of strength, both personal and political, to the President. Mr. Clark handles the President's personal correspondence and papers.

The President's working day is divided as follows: From nine to ten, he dictates his personal correspondence. Twice a week the Director of the Budget reports to him at 9:30 o'clock.

From ten to one is a continuous succession of appointments: A Committee Chairman from the House has ten minutes for consultation; Chairman Adams of the Republican National Committee has fifteen for a political discussion; a Metropolitan Opera tenor has two minutes for a handshake and felicitations; Senator Pepper has ten for a suggestion of counsel for the oil lease investigation; Mr. Garcia of San Juan, three, in which to present a beautifully bound volume of Porto Rican views from the President's island admirers; a delegation of six Masons from a Western city, five minutes to invite the President to lay a cornerstone (the President, by the way, belongs to no secret order); Secretary of Labor Davis, four minutes, in which to present a visiting delegation of sixty-five marine engineers—the list can be extended indefinitely by the reader, with the use of a little imagination, with almost the certainty that he cannot make a mistake, because, in the course of a month, practically every conceivable kind of man, woman, and child appears at the White House on "business with the President," which to them is of first importance.

Shortly before one o'clock a line of perhaps a hundred people has been formed in the corridor. These frankly say they want only to shake the President's hand. The doors in the corners of his private office are opened, secret service men station themselves at each, the President takes his stand in the middle of the room with Mr. Slemp at his left, and the line comes in the left door, passes the President, and goes out at the right. Each visitor's name is inquired by Mr. Slemp, who, in turn, introduces him to the President. He greets each with a smile and a cheerful "How do you do?" or "Delighted to meet you!"—expressed with the indescribable New England twang, all the words of each salutation being fully and slowly pronounced in the same tone, except the last word, which rises sharply in pitch and in a staccato emphasis.

The reception over, the President repairs to the main part of the White House for luncheon. Usually he is back at his desk by two, or a very little later. He has few appointments in the afternoon; these hours are kept free for calls by members of the Cabinet and for conferences with members of Congress who come at his request. A certain amount of time is left for the signing of commissions and documents, for which the President's signature is required by law (among antiquated absurdities in this class are provisions that he must sign the commissions of notaries public of the District of Columbia and all wills of Indians who are government charges.) Photographs are autographed and the mail of the day signed late in the afternoon. A significant touch here: the President never signs anything in ignorance of its contents; he is no more perfunctory in this detail than he is in any other occupation.

An innovation in the day's work is just now being introduced. The President wishes not merely to dispose of business as it arises. He wishes in addition to make an organised study of all the great national problems. For this purpose he has made out a list of the subjects he wishes to investigate, and Mr. Slemp has allotted certain days to each, upon which the best-informed men in these subjects are summoned to Washington from all parts of the country, arriving at scheduled hours at the White House for intensive discussion at the request of the President. In a few months this system will put him in possession of the best information and opinion of the country on current problems that organised effort can provide.

It is needless to describe an individual interview with the President, because its character can be gathered from the first few pages of this article. He says little and listens much.

The day's work ends at—when it ends. If he is fortunate, it may be at 4:30 o'clock, when he can go for a walk or for a horseback ride; or, in the summer time, perhaps start for an over-night cruise on the Mayflower. If less fortunate, it may not end until six o'clock, with barely time left to prepare for dinner. In another sense, distinctive of Mr. Coolidge, it practically never ends. As has been said before in these pages, his outstanding characteristic is hard, purposeful, continuous thinking. From this he rarely rests.

Mrs Calvin Coolidge

Off For the Summer Vacation

First in the summer vacation kit, put a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy. Invaluable for sudden and severe pains in the stomach and bowels, cramps and diarrhoea. A great emergency medicine. Costs but little but when needed, worth fifty times its price for a single dose. Sold everywhere.

ANOTHER PIRACY ON WEST RIVER; JUNK IS VICTIM

The story of how a big passenger junk, being towed by a motor boat, successfully fought off two piratical attacks but succumbed to a third, came to hand on June 5 from Canton, according to the Hongkong press.

The junk, which plies between Canton and Shiuhing, was being towed by a motor boat to the latter place on Monday. When off Tze Tung, the boats were attacked by a big gang of robbers who fired from both banks of the river. By offering strong resistance, the boats managed to get away, but were attacked again about an hour later by another gang. This time, also, the boats succeeded in making their escape. When near Shiu Tong, however, two launches were seen to approach and, by reason of the firing, it was early evident that this was a third piratical attack. Those in the motor boat quickly cut the tow rope and made off in an opposite direction, leaving those on the junk to their fate. Little resistance was offered and the pirates seized the junk.

About $10,000 and a quantity of valuable cargo was stolen, while over 50 of the passengers were kidnapped and are now being held for ransom.

TEA MARKET IS STRONGER AT PRESENT; IS SURPRISE

Small Crop And Russian Buying Is Responsible

GOOD PRICES

Entire Black Crop Sold Out Promptly

The market for China tea has developed strength and activity during the last few weeks which has been a surprise alike to producers and dealers. The entire first crop of black tea from the Keemun district, amounting to about 25,000 half-chests, has been placed on the market and sold at good prices. The country green tea market opened yesterday in Shanghai with prices firm.

Two factors are responsible for high prices—the small crop and the recent resumption of buying on the part of Russia. The reentrance of Russian buyers is particularly encouraging to the trade. For many years Russia was an enormous buyer of China tea, and the disruption of the trade during the world war was a very serious matter to the tea producers.

The recent resumption of diplomatic relations between China and the Soviet Government has opened the way for Russian buyers to come into the China market. Russian agents began buying tea at Hankow on a comparatively large scale a few days ago, and the strengthening effect of the Russian demand is felt in the Shanghai market.

RUSSIAN MARKET

While Russia formerly bought cheap brick tea in great quantities for use by the peasants, that country also took a certain amount of high grade product, and the recent purchases by Russians in Hankow were for the better grades. The brick tea is made from low grade leaves, the siftings and left-overs, pressed in the form of bricks and made easy to transport by pack train overland to Russia. At one time, Russia took practically all of the leavings from the tea crop, and it is expected that this demand will be renewed and that the market now can be developed to its former volume.

Due to adverse weather, the tea crop is about 30 percent below normal throughout China. With the demand, perhaps, above normal and the supply below the usual average, prices have been considerably strengthened.

The prices for high grade black tea during the past ten days has been particularly encouraging, averaging Tls. 10 higher per picul than last year. A few days ago several hundred packages of high grade black, purchased by a British firm, brought Tls. 105 per picul, the highest price of the present season. This same tea last season did not go higher than Tls. 95. England is the principal market for high grade black teas. This tea, purchased in bulk in China, is given various blends in England, repacked in small packages and sold under various trade names.

The green tea which arrived yesterday came from the Souy-on district of Anhwei province. It was medium grade and sold for Tls. 52 per picul. Teas from the well-known Moyune and Tuenkai districts of the same province are expected in Shanghai in the next few days. The better grade of green tea is expected to sell as high as Tls. 100 per picul.

GREEN TEA TO FRANCE

Since the French are the principal buyers of green teas, the low exchange value of the franc is working to the advantage of tea sales in the local market. Most of the green tea, exported from Shanghai, goes to the French colonies in North Africa, with Morocco as the principal buying center. It is reported that green tea stocks in Morocco are low, and a demand is expected from that source.

Some of the new season's crop of green tea from Chekiang province has arrived in Shanghai. Most of the tea from this territory goes to America, but buyers from this country are holding back somewhat on account of the present prices, which they regard as too high.

The Foochow green tea market is reported strong and active, due, in part, to the favorable condition of the tea market in Shanghai. Usually Foochow tea is purchased in quantity in Shanghai for blending purposes.

"The present strength of the market has been a surprise to everybody," a Chinese tea dealer said yesterday. "The financial returns from the first crop have been most encouraging. Unless the market falls with the second or third crop, the season will be a satisfactory one. Anyhow, the market transactions to date have been decidedly encouraging, and the outlook for the remainder of the season is good."

U. S. SILK DYERS MEET AT BANQUET IN NEW JERSEY

Association Vice-President Is Principal Speaker At "History Dinner"

New York, May 16.—"The Silk Association of America was represented at the "history dinner of the Silk Dyers' Mutual Protective Association of America, which was held at the Elmwood Country Club, in New Jersey, May 13. Mr. Ramsay Peugnet, secretary, and Mr. George A. Post, vice-president of the Silk Association of America attended. Mr. Post, as one of the speakers of the evening, presented the following address:

"The Silk Industry primarily typifies progress. It has grown from almost nothing to one of the largest industries in the world, and what is more marvelous, it has all been accomplished during the span of a life time. In fact, it has been during the business life time of many Patersonians whom we all knew intimately. Some have passed away recently.

"Notable among these is Catholina Lambert who died last year. Mr. Lambert was one of the organisers, fifty-two years ago, of the Silk Association of America. Among the men found on the Association's first board of managers are many whose names are familiar to us, such as: John Ryle, Ward Cheney, C. Greppo, Thomas N. Dale, A. B. Strange, Albert Tilt, Franklin Allen, Ira Dimock, F. O. Horstman, W. Itschner, A. A. Low, Briton Richardson, John N. Stearns, George B. Skinner, Auguste Soleliac, William Ryle; William Strange and many other well-known names. They were all pioneers in the industry which we have made our life work.

"We also have with us many of the old raw silk houses such as: William Ryle and Company; Russell Murray and Company; Hadden and Company; Morimura Arai and Company; E. Gerli and Company. The throwsters too, are represented in this gallery of pioneers. I remember Mackay and Rowson and Read and Lovatt.

BUSINESS STARTED IN 1838

"In 1838 the silk business was started in Paterson on the fourth floor of what was then the Colt Building, in which the Colt family were making their newly invented Colt Revolver. In the Colt Building of today are the National Silk Dyeing Company. This should be, therefore, a constant reminder of the early beginnings of the Paterson Silk Industry.

"The next historical development of the silk industry was right after the Civil War when, due to a protective tariff, the industry started to boom. The developments in the dyeing industry at that time, I find, began in 1860 with the formation of a dye house by a Mr. O'Neil. In 1865 silk dyeing was started in Philadelphia and in 1866 Mr. Greppo organised his plant in Paterson, making such a success of it, apparently, that in 1876 he took in Jacob Weidman as a partner.

"Among the other dyeing establishments that I personally remember, were those of George Morlot, Thonereau, Paterson Dyeing Association, Peter Montalent, See and Sheehan, E. Geering, Kearns Bros., Koupscher and Mans. I recall, also, when a dyeing and cleaning establishment was started on West Street by Robert Gaede; and, I remember when Auguer and Simon used to dye with "Putoz" water.

"At that time I had not started in as a silk manufacturer. I was a banker; and can recall when we were financing Jacob Weidman's growing expansion needs on Paterson Street. Other customers of the bank at that time, I remember, were Benjamin Eastwood on Straight Street and Fred Dale, the "dandy," with long flowing hair. The girls would enjoy him today. Perhaps he was the original Sheik. Weighing at that time, to my recollection, was done with sugar, sumac, and gall. I used to buy real Logwood chips and Gambier from Mr. Androvette who is still as full of pep and young as ever. Mr. Blackburn from Geigy Analine Worker, and Mr. Marmion from Philip Kaicher were also leading figures at that time.

"The first big development toward the modern dyeing industry was the formation of the National Silk Dyeing Company as composed of Auger and Simon, Lotte, Geering, Gaede, Kearns, Koupscher and Mans, Dundee Lake. To show you how I believed in the future success of the Paterson Dyeing industry, I will tell you that I soon got aboard that consolidation.

FUTURE PROSPECTS UNLIMITED

"Our future prospects are unlimited. You know they say that the first fifty, or perhaps in our case, the first fifty-two years are the hardest. This prosperity, moreover, will be very much accelerated if we co-operate with one another on the foundations of the fundamentals of our great industry. But most of all, we must co-ordinate our ideas for the general good and that is where your Trade Association comes in. Very often we think that prosperity is due to our individual efforts, and that may be right to an extent, but only if we make the most of our opportunities. But where do our opportunities come from? Suppose we had a low tariff in place of a high tariff, foreign competition in place of domestic competition, 16.00 raw in place of 6.00 raw, low taxes in place of high taxes, 20-year child labor law in place of 14-16 year law, poor goods in place of the best in the world, indiscriminate weighing in place of safe and sane weighing, poor styles in place of the most advanced, poor advertising in place of good fashion propaganda, a poor personnel in place of high classed men, a poor Silk Association in place of a good one? What power would individual personality have been in this great game?

"Co-operation is the life of industry and I feel sure that every manufacturer in this country is willing to conceive that without the help of the dyers and the organisations which they have built up since the early days, we would not have been able to compete as we have with Europe and its knowledge of centuries. Nor would we have been able to stage those magnificent silk expositions in 1921 and 1923.

"Your project to prepare this history of the dyeing industry in this country is most commendable. Nothing should be more inspiring to future generations than to read over in such form, the struggles of their forefathers, in placing the industry upon its present basis.

"As vice-president of the Silk Association of America, I can assure you of its sincere sympathy with your efforts and to offer you such use as it may be, its library of early American books of the silk industry in which you may find some facts which have not already come to your, or our, attention."

MITSUI TRUST CO. OF TOKIO FACES BRIGHT FUTURE

New Organization Pays 7 Per Cent. Interest On Investments

A new trust law that went into effect January 1, 1923, made it necessary for nearly 500 trust companies in Japan, which had been doing business on a total capital of Y.350,000,000 in accordance with the corporation law, to obtain new permits from the Government to comply with the new regulations. The restrictions in this new law were such that to date only 21 trust companies are now doing business.

The Mitsui Trust Company, Ltd., was the first permitted among the new trust companies to open its business under the existing law. It has a capital of Y.30,000,000, one-fourth of which has been paid in, and has only been open for business since April 15 of this year. The temporary business office is now located opposite Hibiya Park at Yurakucho, 3 Chome. It has about 50 investors at the present time, among the largest share holders being the Mitsui Gomei Kaisha, the Mitsui Bank and influential capitalists in Tokio and Osaka.

HAS PAID ALL EXPENSES

The Mitsui Trust Company during the month and a half that it has been in business has been able to pay off all its expenses and expects by the end of its next closing term in November to carry a larger fund and pay dividends to its depositors. At present the company has a trust fund of fixed deposits amounting to Y.5,000,000 which it pays an interest rate of a fraction over 7 percent; Y.4,000,000 in government securities, chiefly bonds in trust, and Y.7,500,000 circulating capital. With such a start the company hopes to establish a large surplus soon and also borrow-money.

One of the greatest things for the company, as well as the country of Japan is the establishing of a good system of credit, said one of the officers of the Mitsui Trust Company, last week. The most essential factor at this critical time in the financial market is the restoring of credit among business firms and banks.

According to the new Trust Law, the accounts of the various companies must be closed at the end of May and November of each year. Prospects are exceedingly bright for the new Mitsui Trust Company, which has just closed its books for the first term of business. A shareholders' meeting will be held June 28.

In the future the Mitsui Trust Company intends to handle securities in the way of issuing debentures for the company, or floating them in the market. The company also intends to do some underwriting of accounts. The profits will be divided to the trust fund or the companies own account, it was explained.

The 21 new trust companies that have been established since the new law became effective have a combined capital of Y.120,000,000, of which Y.26,000,000 has been paid up at the present time.

TO HAVE NEW BUILDING

A large permanent building, designed by James Stuast and Co. of New York, is now under construction at Surugacho, Nihonbashi-ku, that will be the new home of the Mitsui Trust Company when completed. At a large expense the company has contracted for 10,000 safes of the newest American type for the use of its investors and depositors. In addition to this main office the Mitsui Trust Company may establish some branch offices in other places later. The company is now in a position to handle negotiable documents, real estate trust funds, purchase securities and take care of bonds.

Dr. Y. Hara, well-known attorney, is law adviser for the company and will take charge of any legal procedure that affects the company's interests. Mr. Umekichi Yoneyama is president of the new Mitsui Trust Company. He was formerly managing director of the Mitsui Bank for more than ten years. Such a man at the head of this concern is enough in itself to convince every one that this company will be one of the most influential, progressive and reliable trust companies of Japan in the future.

Notice To Subscribers

In an endeavor to produce an even better paper than was formerly the case—an endeavor which the steadily growing popularity of THE CHINA PRESS has proved to be successful—the publishers have recently increased the editorial staff, supplemented the cable and foreign correspondence services, added a pictorial news section, and improved the editorial and feature contents. These improvements naturally entail a much heavier cost of production, and thus we are reluctantly compelled to increase our rates of subscription, as from April 1st, as follows:

One Year	Mex. $28.00
Six Months	" 15.00
Four Months	" 10.50
One Month	" 2.75

Postage to outports, etc. $6.00 per annum extra.

Under the new rates subscribers will still obtain THE CHINA PRESS more cheaply than it can be purchased day by day on the street. Allowing 312 publishing days to the year (230 weekdays and 52 Sundays), the annual cost, if purchased on the street, is $36.40.

United States Is Asleep Regarding Her Shipping States Board Chairman

Railroad's Contracts With Foreign Shipowners Retard Growth Of American Merchant Marine

Washington.—"Unholy alliances" between American railroad companies and foreign shipping lines are hampering the development of the American merchant marine, according to T. V. O'Conner, chairman of the United States Shipping Board. For the purpose of insuring themselves profitable freight business Mr. O'Conner declares that certain American railroads have entered into contracts with foreign navigation companies whereby American shipments are systematically diverted to their vessels. As the Shipping Board chairman views it, American railroads are thus placing formidable barriers in the path of the American merchant marine. To such tactics Mr. O'Conner ascribes the fact that many of the 366 government-owned vessels are operated at a loss and deprived of cargoes to which they are legitimately entitled. It is because of conditions like those, Mr. O'Conner claims, that Uncle Sam has a tied-up and idle fleet of 869 steel ships, many of which might otherwise be profitmakers.

Chairman O'Connor is addressing this week at Detroit a convention of shippers, merchants and exporters, who will confer on transportation problems and foreign trade. He expects there will be railroad executives in his audience. He hopes so, because he intends calling a spade a spade when discussing the readiness of some American carriers to discriminate against United States ocean shipping. Mr. O'Connor cites as an example of "what we are up against" the contracts entered into by the Great Northern Railway and the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway with the two leading Japanese steamship lines. According to the Shipping Board chieftain, these roads have agreements with the Nippon Yusen Kaisha line, which makes its American headquarters in the port of Seattle, and the Toyo Kisen Kaisha line, which sends its vessels out of San Francisco.

Under these agreements, Mr. O'Connor explains, every agent working for the American railroads in question is a solicitor of freight business for the Japanese companies. These companies are in direct and daily competition with both American government-owned and privately owned vessels. There is not an important port in the Far East, and intermediate points, that American-flag ships do not touch in the course of regular services. Our boats afford, broadly speaking, every facility which the Japanese lines offer, both as to rates, time and other factors. But the two great northwestern trunk lines, allied by contract with the Japanese companies, are required in effect to work against the competing American merchant marine.

JAPANESE SHIPS GET FREIGHT

As an example of how the combination is working to the detriment of United States shipping, the shipping Board is in possession of data showing that of 75,000 tons of freight recently carried over the Great Northern and C. M. & St. P. lines to the Pacific coast, 71,000 tons were loaded aboard Japanese bottoms, and only 4,000 aboard American bottoms. Chairman O'Conner asserts there is also a legitimate grievance in connection with the $100,000,000 loan which Wall Street recently made to the Japanese governmnt. It was understood, he says, that at least $80,000,000 of the loan would be spent in the United States for purchase of American supplies, mostly earthquake reconstruction materials. Mr. O'Conner does not doubt that this part of the bargain is being, or will be, faithfully kept. But he declares that there is no evidence that any of the profitable freight business resultant from such purchases has been consigned to Japan in American ships. It is going there in Japanese vessels. The shipping chairman thinks this is "an injustice."

"Pacts for mutual profit between American railroads and foreign shipping lines are nothing new," said Chairman O'Conner to this writer. "Since the Shipping Board was established, we have ordered several big trunk systems to cancel their arrangements where we found them directly discriminatory against our ships. Our merchant marine will never reach the point it is entitled to reach, and easily can reach, until there is vastly greater team-work among American manufacturers, shippers and railway companies. Instead of abusing foreign shipping companies for 'stealing our business' we should emulate the businesslike methods they pursue. If they can, as they do, persuade their own people to insist that goods purchased in the United States shall be shipped across the Atlantic or Pacific in non-American ships, that is their privilege. It is our duty to see that nothing like that is 'put over us'. Foreign buyers need our produce just as badly as we need to sell it. They do not buy it because they love us. They buy it because they find it necessary or profitable to do so.

"The United States Shipping Board has deferred the effective date of Section 28 of the Shipping Act for the purpose of giving exporters and importers full opportunity to adjust themselves to the situation which that piece of American legislation creates. It is doing exactly what the British exporters and importers recommended in their recent meeting, where this emphatic declaration was made:

"If Great Britain is to maintain and improve her predominant place in world-wide commerce, there must be systematic and cordial co-operation in the relation of the shipowners, the shipbuilder and the cargo-owner in his respective capacities of manufacturer, merchant, importer and exporter. No longer can they carry on their affairs in water-tight compartments, treating each section as having interests alien from the other."

"This declaration," says Mr. O'Conner, "is one which in an Americanized form should be posted in every business office in the United States. The cargo producer—that is, the manufacturer, the farmer, the railroad company, the shipowner and the ship-operator, have a community of interest. Let them realize this fact, as their British competitors have for decade realized it. Let them act accordingly, as their foreign competitors are doing, and the result will be an increase in our foreign trade, business for our merchant shipping, and an increased prosperity for all."

The Real Political Question In America This Year

A FEW DAYS AGO, when the House of Representatives in Washington adopted a resolution to take a recess over the period of the two national political conventions to be held this month, Senator La Follette immediately moved a resolution in the Senate asking for the reassembly of that body early in July for the purpose of considering legislation of benefit to the farmers. This resolution by Senator La Follette, the recognised leader of the so-called Farmer-Labor Bloc in Congress, indicates the element which, in all probability, will provide the keynote in the political situation in the United States this year. In other words, Senator La Follette is going to capitalise the element of economic discontent which exists in the great agricultural sections of the United States and the program which he has drafted (printed in full in these columns yesterday) is broad enough to appeal to the radical of every possible shade from the deep red to pale pink.

In such agricultural states as Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas, the Dakotas, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Montana and others, there is great discontent, and the Republicans must answer for it. During the European War prices for farm products in America went to unheard of heights and the farmers all made a lot of money, but like a great many other persons they did not keep it. They expanded their activities by purchasing more land, more equipment in the form of machinery or buildings and so on, and most of them went into debt expecting the glorious war prices to keep up. Then came the slump, and since the farmers were unorganised they were the first to suffer. Prices for agricultural products dropped to the very bottom, the banks called their loans and times have been hard since that time. The prices for the things which the farmer has had to purchase did not come down with the things he had to sell and the result has been that the farmer, rightly or wrongly, thinks that something is wrong with the system.

Senator La Follette has taken advantage of this situation to make himself the leader of those who are discontented, and this year, for the first time in American political life, there is more or less of a clean-cut class struggle between the "Farmer-Labor" West and the "Commercial-Financial" East. Since these Western States in which the economic discontent exists are normally Republican States, their deflection from the Republican Party is likely to be disastrous to the fortunes of that Party. Under normal conditions, there are more Republicans than there are Democrats in America. In the last national election the Republicans were able to muster a plurality of seven millions, and it is estimated that 30,000,000 votes will be cast in the election this fall. Unless the Republican regulars led by President Coolidge are able to make peace with the discontented Republicans in the West led by La Follette, the result, in all probability, will be a third party movement, and although a Third Party has little chances of success under the American political system, it does have great possibilities for disaster to the fortunes of the Republicans, for it will cut into their strength more than it will cut into the strength of the Democrats.

The Republican Party will try to meet this situation in the National Convention now in session in Cleveland in two ways: Through the adoption of a platform or program which will meet the wishes of the radical discontented West and at the same time hold the conservative East and through the nomination of a Vice-President who will appeal to the West. President Coolidge, coming as he does from Massachusetts, is a conservative and could not be anything else if he wished. A United States dispatch from Washington Sunday stated that President Coolidge had expressed a desire that former Governor Lowden of Illinois may be nominated for the Vice-Presidency. Governor Lowden was one of the most promising candidates for the Presidential nomination at the last Republican convention which nominated President Harding, but lost out through a minor political scandal connected with the selection of his delegates to the Convention from Missouri. He is a son-in-law of George M. Pullman, of Chicago, the millionaire railway car manufacturer, and, as such, it is extremely questionable whether he will be acceptable to the La Follette group.

There is still another possibility in connection with the American national election this year which is now receiving considerable attention in case a Third Party is formed, which is that a Third ticket might be able to carry enough States to prevent an election in November. If this happened, it would throw the election into the House of Representatives. This would give Senator La Follette his great opportunity, for in Congress he wields his great influence through controlling the balance of power. Here anything might happen, for under the present political status of the House, a deadlock might easily develop which would prevent the election of a President before next March 4. If this happened, the election would then go to the Senate, where a Vice-President is elected, and that Vice-President, under the American system, would become President. When the House of Representatives votes for a President, the vote is by States, but in the Senate the vote is individual, that is, each Senator has one vote. This would give La Follette his real opportunity, for, with his control over the half dozen independents, he would control the situation and elect the next President of the American Republic.

Mr. Samuel G. Blythe, one of the keenest political observers in America, gives it as his opinion that "this can happen and it may happen. . . . one man's guess is as good as another's and no guess is worth anything before the issues are joined; but there is this much to be said: There will be something doing in these United States next September and October, something doing in a large, exciting, exclamatory, explosive, objurgatory, and, mayhap, destructive and revolutionary political way."

Congestion On Soochow Creek

WE would direct attention to the two letters, published in another column today, addressed to the Shanghai General Chamber of Commerce by the Chinese General Chamber of Commerce in reply to enquiries made by the Committee of the first-named body as to any steps taken by the Chinese Chamber towards bringing about some improvement in the condition of the Soochow Creek. We need scarcely say at this late hour that the condition of the Soochow Creek has been a byword for something very nearly verging on chaos, and it is, therefore, some solace to learn that the people of eight districts, who have been serious sufferers from the congestion on the Creek, have been successful in raising the amount required for the conservancy of the lower part of the Soochow Creek through the co-operative efforts of the public organisations of the eight districts concerned as well as local commercial bodies, and June 1 was fixed for carrying out the first part of the undertaking by surveying the Creek.

The thanks of commercial bodies in this part of the world are due to the Shanghai General Chamber of Commerce for "pegging away at it" until the Chinese—proverbially tardy in matters of vital importance—have been moved to action. At the annual general meeting of the Chamber held in April, the chairman, in dealing with shipping questions and certain aspects of harbor improvement, said that, connected with the harbor were the twin questions of the River Police and the Soochow Creek. On September 11 the Shipping Sub-Committee met to consider a letter addressed by the Senior Consul to the Chairman of the General Chamber, suggesting that, as the Inspector-General was prepared to finance new capital expenditure totalling Tls. 100,000 on the River Police, so as to increase the force to 58 and give it the necessary plant, but was not prepared to finance more than 25 per cent. of the additional annual expenditure necessary, a special wharfage due of one-fifth of one per cent. on the Customs duty might be levied as an equitable method of providing the additional Tls. 75,000 per annum required. The Chamber replied on October 11, with the suggestion that steps should be taken to secure closer co-operation between the River Police forces of the International Settlement and the French Concession, and stating that, while agreeing with the Senior Consul's proposal, they reserved their right to reconsider their decision if, at the end of the two years, the service did not prove satisfactory. At the annual conference of British Chambers of Commerce in China, it will be remembered, they took the subject up again, passing a resolution to the effect that they viewed with grave concern the serious increase in thieving and robbery within Shanghai's harbor limits and urging that measures should be taken to reorganise the River Police Force. The frequently congested state of the Soochow Creek is partly the result of inadequate policing, so that if we can get the Police Force augmented and improved we shall be able automatically to improve the condition of the Creek. The Creek will never be an adequate waterway, of course, until it is properly dredged, and now that the work is in hand, it only goes to show what can be done by hammering away.

The Will Of The People

ELOQUENT evidence daily accumulates in the United States that the Volstead Law rests on the will of the people and that those who contravene that law are running counter to the spirit of the nation and are, in their own way, to be accounted just as much enemies of their country as alien plotters who endeavor to sow the seeds of revolution. A New York telegram received yesterday says that considerable zest has been given to the political situation through a statement by Governor Smith of New York, the avowed Democratic candidate for the Presidency, on his stand on the "wet" or "dry" issue. which he made in response to an enquiry by the Self-Determination League. Governor Smith said that he opposed saloons and "hard liquor," but favored light wines and beer. He desired modification of the Volstead Law and challenged its definition of intoxicants.

The mere fact that Governor Smith refrains from seeking the entire abolition of the Volstead Law but only desires its modification shows, if it shows anything, that no American politician in quest of public favor dare run counter to the expressed will of the nation in the matter of Prohibition. Anyone who pits himself against Prohibition indulges in a vain beating of the air which is not likely to carry him very far, for the latest papers received from America tell of a vigorous and severe application of the law on the premises of nine cabarets on Broadway. If such a procedure is extended to other parts of the country, there is likely to be a marked diminution of confidence on the part of those who are so fond of saying that Prohibition cannot be enforced. It is true, of course, that occasional raids on mysteriously selected violators of the law—raids that rarely result in anything more than fines absurdly small in comparison with the profits from illicit sales—never will dry up the fountains of alcohol. But the closing for a year of buildings on Broadway for which high rents have been paid is another matter, and a matter of the very keenest interest to those owners of real estate who hitherto laboriously have maintained a beautiful semblance of ignorance as to the sort of business done on their premises. At the clicking of a large padlock, those owners will develop a keen and effective attention to the conduct of their tenants, and the latter probably will discover at once that no longer can they break the law as much as they please.

The action taken in these padlock cases is summary, but it is, or at any rate may be, in strict accord with the Federal statutes, and those against whom it is taken or proposed can have a "day in court" as long as they please unless they choose, as in at least some of these Broadway instances, to admit that the evidence taken against them is such in quality and amount that a successful defense is impossible. Trials naturally are brief when guilt is confessed; and while common report is far from being legal evidence, nobody, even among the New Yorkers who lack personal knowledge of what has been going on in the restaurants now closed, has the slightest doubt as to the accuracy of common report as relating to them.

THE HOME

Of course, a bachelor or a bachelor maid can have a home, and a childless couple can have a home.

But it is a home only in an accommodated and borrowed sense of the word. It is not a home in the full meaning of the term.

To make a complete home you need a complete set of human relations, as per the following list prepared by Nature and indorsed by the best traditions.

Husband and father.
Wife and mother.
Children, including babies and adolescents;
Sisters and brothers.
Grandfather.
Grandmother.
Guests.
And a dash of neighbors and friends.

If you lack any one of these items, you miss something—the home is not perfect.

If there is one of these relationships you have never known, your life is by so much maimed.

It is the fashion to speak disparagingly of relatives, but they are a part of the environment of Nature, and if you get nothing but annoyance from them, something ails you. You might as well curse the sun and stars as hate relatives. There be hot loves and wayward loves, and they have their place; but blessed is the man, and thrice blessed the woman, that loves the people that ought to be loved.

There are grandmother and grandfather, for instance. The child that has them not has missed one of the sweetest elements that make memory happy. They understand children better than parents, for they have learned that so many things that worry parents are not much matter.

And plenty of brothers and sisters. A solitary child in a house is a lame soul. He can never get that sound view of the world that comes to the member of a full family.

As for babies, it's only a sort of imitation family where there are none. The very best ingredients of our character come from dealing with babies.

And I love a houseful of young folks, of the courting age. The only wholesome, delightful, and cheering disease in or out of the medicine books is lovesickness. When we grow past its agonising stages we still ought to see it in others around us.

Most cranks and dried-up folks and pessimists and disagreeable people are victims of small families. They have been deprived of that wholesome flow of the humanities that comes from a full set of relations.

I want to go back to Arthur Dixon's and eat at the table where there are thirteen children and a small army of grandchildren, and all about and everywhere—love.

SUMMER SCHOOL

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS:

Sir—I am much obliged to you for publishing my letter with outline of proposal for a Summer School during the coming July and August—for young children between the ages of 5 and 6 to 10 and 11—which appeared in your issue of 8th instant, on page 21 of same.

Will parents likely to be interested who may not have seen my previous letter kindly refer to it by above reference.

Progress, so far, is as follows: Some parents have communicated with me and we still require a few more to complete our numbers.

I anticipate that with about 40 children divided into two classes, that the probable cost per month for each child will be $20.

In the case of two children from the same family, the figure should be $30.

I shall propose to the meeting of parents who wish to participate that the payment for their children shall be made in one lump sum for the two months session, and shall be payable in advance.

This will be a sine qua non, so far as I am concerned, as it will enable us to have our cash in hand for our teachers and other expenses before commencing the project.

I want to get the thing arranged as soon as possible and shall feel greatly obliged if any interested parents will write to me chop chop.

By the way, children of all nationalities are welcome—but for convenience, the summer school will be conducted entirely in English.

Social considerations and racial differences do not matter in this project—the chief points being that the little boys and girls shall be sent to school by their parents swept and garnished—(and not have dirty noses, more than is necessary!)—and that all parents will be prepared and willing to pay their dues in advance.

We cannot give any 'tick' whatever.

Will those interested write to me at 1290 Rue Lafayette as promptly as possible because once we organise and make our arrangements late comers will share the fate of the five foolish virgins, and have all the trouble of organising another summer school of their own.

I am, etc.,
W. Bruce Lockhart.

Electricity

Cooking Made Easy.

Electric cooking avoids not only the serious waste of meat inseparable from old-fashioned methods of cooking, it avoids waste of all kinds—waste of some of the most valuable products of a joint, and waste of delicate flavor. The much discussed saving in the weight of meat which follows from electric roasting has now been proved. The saving is owing to no particular virtue of electricity, but to the fact that the oven-heat, regulated with ease by a few switches and a thermometer, can be maintained at the correct degree to cook the meat without the close attention and continuous manipulation of fire and dampers which is necessary to maintain on a coal range even an approximately uniform oven heat.

The Pilgrim

Success cannot stop. It must go on.

No one can say: "This is my goal. Here I am where I struggled to be. I have gained the prize. I have done."

For the moment he says that he begins to slide back. Decay has set in.

As the ambitious one goes forward the horizon recedes. He never comes to it.

No man can get to the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow.

Before the live and the strong flies an angel crying: "On! On!"

We are pilgrims and strangers, and have here no abiding city.

And the more intelligent, vigorous and high-minded we are, the more sure it is we cannot stop.

Only the stupid can say, "It is enough. Here I abide."

Success is not achievement. It is development.

Humanity's reward and joy is not in arriving. It is in travelling.

We rest by the way. We take our ease at inns. We have no ultimate home.

Each high soul is a Wandering Jew.

Harriman and Morgan must go on planning, expanding, building. Death finds them in the thick of affairs. As they went on they stumbled and disappeared.

It is as hard to quit business as it is to get started.

Retirement is often tragedy.

The student cannot stop. In the pursuit of knowledge the paths lead out into the infinite. The astronomer is lost in the star maze. The biologist finds no end or final fact among the crowded atoms.

History is infinite. Botany, literature, languages, mathematics, sociology, all the sciences, overwhelm the mind. It is on, on into the boundless wilderness of knowledge.

Art has no goal. Michael Angelo at the close of his career sighed for that he had but begun.

There is no boundary to love To the true heart—whose love means loyalty and grows with years, gaining in spiritual power for every fleshly charm outgrown—love becomes vaster, more beautiful, celestial in quality, more divinely human. The tombstone becomes a milestone, with the sign "Onward!"

Here we but pitch our tents, rest and play a little for to-night. Tomorrow we must fare forward.

The road ever beckons. Our home is somewhere the other side of those dim mountains we call Death.

So the poet-soul fancies God and rests in Him. As one says:

"And I smiled to think God's goodness
Flows around our incompleteness,
Round our restlessness. His rest."

Tesla's Problem

By Henry Smith Williams

The distinguished electrician, Nikola Tesla, has labored so long on the problem of conveying power without wires or other man-made conductors that this may be said to be distinctively his problem. Perhaps no other electrician of recognised standing regards the project as feasible. But for Tesla, it is an ideal surely attainable; perhaps even now attained, at least in principle.

Thanks to the availability of the high-frequency current which Tesla himself had so large a share in developing, it is easy to send energy into the ether from a wire-system, as is done in radio broadcasting or other radio transmission. But the energy thus liberated radiates in all directions, or at least in all lateral directions, over the surface of the globe. Radio receivers by the thousand, located here, there and everywhere, may each pick up a little of it, and the rest is ultimately absorbed, presumably by the earth itself.

In a word, the energy sent out from the antenna is spread broadcast and dissipated in a way that prohibits all though of sending power by such a method, unmodified, to be used as power. The requisite energy cannot be delivered at any one place, as is commercially necessary, just as the energy of falling water at Niagara is not utilised until a portion of the water is encaged in a tube, and held in a solid column to be brought with full weight against the turbine at the foot of the tube. A closer analogy is furnished by the conception of a heap of coal burned in the open, sending its heat in every direction, in comparison with the same amount of coal burned in a furnace with a tubular boiler to absorb a maximum proportion of the heat.

It is necessary only to note the familiar fact that the electrical energy developed at a generating source is sent out over high-tension wires to desired points of distribution. The wire furnishes a highway on which the current is prone to travel, but if purposely liberated into the ether the energy becomes utterly vagrant.

Tesla's problem, then, is usually stated as being the problem of directional transmission of electro-magnetic waves through the ether. Tesla believes it possible to charge the body of the earth with electrical energy that will be only potential until locally tapped; somewhat as a hollow globe might be filled with water under pressure which would exhaust no energy until a hole is made in the shell which a portion of the water might rush.

The suggestion seems chimerical; but undoubtedly less so in this day, when the ether is filled with radio waves of varying length that are to be intercepted only by apparatus specially "tuned" to resonance with a particular wave, ignoring all others, than it would have seemed a few years ago. And in any event, when the suggestion is made by the pioneer high-frequency explorer, it is at least worth pondering.

Riding The Storms

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS,

In one of Jules Verne's best scientific romances a balloon is driven by a storm from Richmond, Virginia, to an unknown part of the Pacific Ocean, where its inmates at last make a landing on a lone volcanic island. Monsieur Verne did not think of having important scientific observations on the laws of storms and the peculiarities of the atmosphere made and recorded by his tempest-driven adventurers; perhaps he would have regarded such a suggestion as too extravagant even for a novel. But now Dr. Meisinger, of the United States Weather Bureau, with no thought of romance, proposes to undertake just that thing, in full earnest.

Dr. Meisinger's idea is that he can go up in a balloon, through a storm, to a height, say, of 10,000 feet, and ride along in the midst of the storm, quietly making his observations with his meteorological instruments as if he were seated in a laboratory on the solid ground.

His scheme includes fifteen storm flights, starting from Scott Field, near St. Louis. The forty-foot balloon bag will contain 35,000 cubic feet of hydrogen. By means of radio and carrier pigeons he expects to keep in communication with the world below while he sails away on the wings of a cyclone.

A cyclone, scientifically speaking, as everybody ought to know, is not a tornado, but a vast wind system spreading over an area that may be a thousand miles or more in diameter, moving as a whole in a general easterly, or northeasterly, direction, and at the same time rotating, like an immense atmospheric whirlpool, the direction of rotation being from right to left. All of our great country-wide storms are cyclones or of a cyclonic character.

This rotative movement implies a center about which the rotation occurs, and all the winds that make up the cyclone move on spiral lines, gradually drawing in toward the center, where the barometric pressure is lowest. The center of the storm is evidently the crucial point, but a good deal of doubt still exists in regard to its nature and its precise relations to the wind currents and the regions of the storm in which rain or snow falls.

It is to get more light on the mystery of the storm center that Dr. Meisinger proposes to ride a few cyclones balloon-back, so so speak. He reckons that he can keep in the upper air currents of the storm, and map out their lines of advance in such a way that it will be possible to chart cyclones and their movements with an accuracy not heretofore attainable.

If he succeeds in carrying out his scheme in all its variations he will be as adventurous as a circus rider in the unconventionality of his attitudes and positions, riding sometmes on the tail of the storm steed, and sometimes on its neck and head, and then in the saddle. In front the cyclonic winds veer northerly, and in the rear they tend toward the south. Look at a daily weather map and you will see how complicated the directions of the wind arrows are in detail, although taking the whole lot into account the general whirl from right to left around the center is plainly shown. In addition to these internal motions the whole system, it must be remembered, is drifting eastward or northeastward.

From the midst of the storm clouds Dr. Meisinger expects to receive broadcast messages from the Weather Bureau, telling him how things look below, while, with his carrier pigeons he can send down news of what he observes from the back of the cyclone itself.

One thing which he does not need to be told to avoid is the neighborhood of thunderstorms. But no doubt if he keeps up his explorations long enough he will have more than one opportunity to learn something about the relation of thunderstorms to the cyclonic circulation.

Besides the motions of the cyclone, he will study a multitude of details, such as atmospheric dust, the formation of rain, the varying size of raindrops, etc., the acoustics of the upper air, effects of light and color, and so on. It is a great adventure, and deserves success.

American Lightship Men Love Their Homes Afloat

Despite The Isolation And Roughness Of Anchorage At Sea They Become Restless When Ashore

When the Fire Island lightship was damaged by collision with an erratic scow recently, her skipper turned the craft to the one place where repairs are to be had in such an emergenvy—the United States Lighthouse Service Station at St. George, S. I.

It is no new thing for lightships to come in for repairs. One would think that these permanently anchored and most conspicuous objects on the sea would be free from the dangers of collision, but as a matter of fact they are in a more dangerous position than a ship that is free, as absolute dependence must be placed on the watchfulness and skill of the "other fellow."

Not so long ago the Ambrose lightship received what almost proved to be its death blow; the colliding craft in this case also was one of the scows that are constantly putting out of New York Harbor. But for the fact that the sea was calm, the lightship would never have reached the dock at St. George. Lightship men generally have a superstition that if they are ever actually sent to the bottom it will not be under the prow of some great transatlantic liner, but because of an inglorious death blow received from one of the clumsy, unromantic, but necessary craft that carry away New York's wastage.

When their floating homes are laid up for repairs of one sort or another is about the only chance the crews on the lightships have of getting acquainted with life ashore. For months at a stretch the crews of the lightships pitch and toss on the restless waters outside of New York Harbor. "Join the lightship service and see the world" will never be borrowed from the familiar slogan of the navy, for these men must stay anchored in one spot. On account of this permanent anchorage their ships are much more subject to the tossing of the waves than a free ship would be. Consequently a man in the lightship service has to be double-proof against seasickness. So rough is the handling these ships are subject to that it is virtually impossible to keep pets aboard. The mascots which thrive so well on battleships, which craft, comparatively stable on account of their great weight, would soon sicken and die on a lightship. The "outside men" in the lighthouse service must depend for their amusement on such inanimate things as phonographs and the radio. Yet, in spite of these peculiar features of the life, which would go against the grain of the average individual, the men in the lightship service are restless when they are not anchored at their post of duty. Often when they get two or three days' shore leave, following a trip to the St. George station, they drift back to the ships after one day in the big town across the water. Many find nothing in New York to hold them for the full term of their shore leave, and sit around the dock uneasily until the ship puts out to sea again.

The men get a chance at openings in the land service, such as taking care of lighthouses. But some of them stick to the lightships through preference. One has to be something of a scientist as well as a seaman to make good in the service, because a lightship is equipped with all sorts of signaling and warning devices, with which every man aboard must be familiar. Besides powerful lights, these ships have radio, fog signals and submarine bells.

The lightship men must not only keep watch and ward for the ordinary traffic of the sea, but often they are called upon to save small craft that are driven out of New York Harbor. Perhaps a motor boat with a fishing party aboard, has had its machinery put out of commission. More than once aviators have descended in forced landings and have been rescued by the lightships near New York. During the war, when the German submarine menace was at its height, the lightships were in a peculiarly exposed position, and the waiting game at the outer edge of the harbor was something calculated to try the stoutest of nerves.

Repairing these lightships, with their costly and complicated equipment, is something that calls for the service of experts. Some of the lens makers and repairers have been working for the Government for years. So, also, have some of the men whose duty it is to bring in and repair the buoys of all descriptions, more than a thousand of which are planted in the waters adjacent to New York City. Those which carry lights fall under the general heads of intermittent, group flashing, occulting and group occulting. There are air sirens and reed horns and bells that are sounded by the action of the sea, or by human agency.

There is complicated machinery in many of these buoys. Yet so well protected is this machinery from the elements that a buoy, under average conditions of service, will work without attention for fourteen months. If the action of the waves were all the service had to contend with, the matter of repair work would be comparatively simple. But buoys are being run down constantly by all sorts of craft.

When a buoy is reported as damaged, a tender is sent out from the service station and the silenced monster is hoisted aboard and brought in for repairs. This sounds simple, but hoisting in a buoy that weighs severed tons is no small job, particularly if there is a rough sea and it is Winter weather. Under such conditions a buoy thrashes around as if it were very much alive and very angry, and the men on the tender would be risking their lives if they did not know so well how to handle these giants. Besides the repair work there are regular jobs of repainting. There is nothing more destructive to paint than salt water. So painting is always going on at the St. George docks.

It is only by constant vigilance, down to the smallest detail, that the United States Lightouse Service, which guards some 43,000 miles of coast line in all, is able to do its job.

New Pacific Mail Ship Is Launched

Launched at Gothenberg recently, the new Pacific Mail motor liner City of San Francisco will sail for the Pacific Coast about the middle of July under the Swedish flag. After her arrival in San Francisco in August or September, however, she may be transferred to the Panamanian flag. She is precluded from American registry except by special act of Congress.

The City of San Francisco is to be a twin-screw Diesel motorship of 2,900 tons deadweight, rated at 14 knots. She will have accommodations for about 50 passengers, and will operate between San Francisco, Los Angeles and the West Coast as far south as the Panama Canal. A sistership, the City of Panama, will be launched a month hence. The vessels, being built by Gotaverken, are 313 feet long, 45.9 feet of beam, and 30 feet moulded depth.

Baron Stael Von Holstein Throws Light On Lamaism

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, June 8.—In view of the impending visit of the Panchan Lama and the uncertainty that appears to exist in the minds of many people regarding the relative positions of the Dalai and Panchan Lama the following review of the subject by Baron Stael von Holstein, International Authority on Lamaism and kindred subjects, is of special interest:

"The two Grand Lamas of Tibet, the Dalai Lama of Lhassa and the Panchan Lama of Tashilhunpo (a monastery near the town of Shigatse, about 150 miles West of Lhassa) both belong to the dominating Yellow Hat sect of Lamaism, and both enjoy temporal power as well as ecclesiastical authority. The latter is based on two long lines of spiritual ancestry, which lose themselves in the mist of the remotest antiquity. The former dates from the middle of the seventeenth century, when Guari Khan, a Mongol Prince, conquered Tibet and appointed the predecessors of the two Grand Lamas as secular rulers. That appointment was, a few years later, confirmed by the first Manchu Emperor of China.

"It would be difficult to decide whether the Dalai Lama or the Panchan Lama is the greater Saint in the eyes of the faithful, but the learned degrees of Tashilhunpo seem to have commanded a deeper respect than those of Lhassa in the scholastic world of Lamaism during the last centuries. The see of Lhassa, on the other hand, has always been more important politically than the Grand Lamaship of Tashilhunpo. The latter enjoys no administrative authority beyond the frontiers of the Province of Tsang, while the Dalai Lama's temporal sway extends over the whole of Tibet except Tsang.

"The correct Tibetan title of the Grand Lama who is expected in Peking shortly is: Pan-chan-rin-po-cha. 'Pan' is an abbreviation of the Sanscrit word "Pandita" (pundit) or "Scholar," 'chan' is the Tibetan word for "great," and 'rin-po-cha' means "jewel" in Tibetan. Peking's saintly guest should, therefore, be addressed in English as the jewell (or the most excellent) among the great scholars. The present holder of that exalted title is not the first Grand Lama of Tashilhunpo to visit the capital of China. One of his predecessors came here as a highly honored guest of the Emperor Chien Lung, who received him with great pomp and treated him almost as an equal. His death, which occurred at Peking in 1770, is by some authorities ascribed to poisoning, but accordng to the official version the Grand Lama died of smallpox.

"The magnificent marble pagoda behind the Yellow Temple, which is still one of the marvels of the capital was erected by the Emperor in honor of the deceased priest-king. Before starting on his fatal journey to China the Grand Lama entered into political relations with Warren Hastings, the Governor General of British India, whose representative, a certain Mr. Boyle, was received at Tashilhunpo and had several interviews with the Pan-chan-rin-po-cha.

"After the latter's premature demise at Peking, which some writers regard as due to his diplomatic activities, his soul was reincarnated in a boy who, although an infant, was, according to custom forthwith enthroned as the new Panchan Lama. The reappearance on earth of the mighty prelate was soon (in 1783) followed by an embassy extraordinary headed by Captain Turner, a relative of Warren Hastings, which proceeded to Tashilhunpo in order to offer congratulations on the divine reincarnation. Captain Turner upon his return published a detailed account of the Embassy's experiences, and we owe to him most of what we know about conditions in Tibet during the latter part of the eighteenth century."

TENDERS

Are invited for the purchase of a
SINLA BUDDHA
Over 1,800 years old
Made of Gold, Silver, Metal and Copper

This Golden Buddha was fashioned of gold, silver and copper in the Sinla Dynasty, more than 1,800 years ago.

In those days it was the national law of the country to bury a buddha with any eminent official or member of the Royal Family, if he or she died, Buddhism being the national religion.

At that time there was an eminent man called Yu Sam Jai, who was the Prime Minister of the King's Court. When the Prime Minister died the King sent this Buddha to be buired with him, in accordance with the law.

Two hundred and sixty years ago this Buddha was discovered in the grave by the late Prime Minister's descendant.

The Sinla Dynasty was before the age of Korea. In the year 1915, at Osaka, one Sinla Buddha, smaller than this one, was sold by public auction for Y250,000. The height was only 6 inches, and the bottom was broken off.

SEALED TENDERS will be received, and each tender must be accompanied by a cash deposit or certified cheque for not less than 5% of the bid, at the American Oriental Bank, which will be refunded by the said Bank to the respective tenderers after the selection of the tender.

The tender must be received by post before 12 o'clock, noon, on June 15, 1924, and will be opened in public at 3 p.m. on the same day. Sealed envelopes should be addressed to, and the Buddha can be seen by appointment at—

Salt Fund Cause Of New Fighting

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Chengtu, May 24.—After some months of peace, following the capture of Chengtu by General Yang Sen, today heavy fighting is reported at T'ung Chuan between General Yang Sen and General T'ien Sung Yao. The cause is reported to be a dispute concerning the distribution of Salt Gabelle monies. For some weeks past the Szechuen Generals have had representatives stationed there to watch their interests. No more definite news is available yet.
